CAN BREAKDOWN OF CONFERENCE BE AVERTED?

M. Litvinoff, the Soviet Commissioner for Foreign Affairs, who has been finding much work in London outside that of the World Economic Conference.

DEFINITION OF AGGRESSOR SOVIET PACT WITH 7 STATES NO EXCUSES

London, July 3.
M. Litvinoff's visit to London has been productive of a further important diplomatic success, the conclusion of a non-aggression pact between the Soviet and seven other countries.

The pact was signed to-day by M. Litvinoff and the representatives of Afghanistan, Estonia, Latvia, Persia, Poland and Turkey. It consists of five Articles and one annex.

AGGRESSOR DEFINED.

The Treaty defines an aggressor as

- (1) the State which is the first to declare war;
- (2) the State which invades the territory of the other without a declaration of war;
- (3) the State which attacks with land, sea or air forces the troops, ships and aircraft of the other State;
- (4) the State which blockades the coasts and ports of the other State;
- (5) the State which supports armed bands in its territory which invade another State and refuses on the request of the invaded State to take the proper steps in its territory to suppress the bands.

NO EXCUSES.

The Annex stipulates that no consideration of any kind shall serve as a pretext or a justification for aggression.

M. Litvinoff, in a statement which was issued simultaneously with the text of the Non-Aggression Pact, explains that the present definition of aggressions is that which was submitted to Geneva but which was found inconvenient and embarrassing to certain States.

The Soviet Government, therefore felt it desirable to embody the definition of aggression in a Convention with a limited number of States.

LINK IN CHAIN.

M. Litvinoff says that the Convention constitutes a new link in the chain of Soviet measures systematically to reinforce peaceful relations with its neighbours. The Soviet is ready to sign a similar Convention with all other nations.—Reuter.

FATAL DIVE BY YOUTH

DROWNING MISHAP AT LAICHIKOK

THOUGHT TO HAVE STRUCK BOTTOM

A drowning fatality occurred at the Laichikok bathing beach yesterday, the victim being Cho Mansang, a young student.

The deceased who used the Chin Mo Athletic Association's shed on the beach, was seen to dive from a height of ten feet. When he did not reappear, it was feared that he had injured himself by having struck the harbour bed, as there was only five feet of water hereabouts at the time.

The Police were informed and assisted by the other bathers, they recovered the body of the unfortunate youth.

LENA GOLDFIELDS ISSUE

London, July 3.
The Metropolitan Vickers engineers released from prison, left Moscow last night and to-day crossed the Russian frontier into Poland at Stolpe.

Captain Anthony Eden, in the House of Commons said the purpose for which the embargo was imposed had thus been attained. Arrangements would shortly be made to resume trade negotiations at the point where they were interrupted.

In these circumstances he could not at present give assurance as to the manner in which the claim of the Lena Goldfields Limited would be dealt with. Similar consideration applied in the case of the clause inspecting private property confiscated from British subjects.—British Wireless.

FOREIGNERS IN DANGER?

Attempt on Soviet Official

ANOTHER TOKYO INCIDENT

Moscow, July 3.
An attempt was made in Tokyo to-day to assassinate M. Kochetoff, the Soviet trade representative, according to despatches from the Japanese capital.

The incident followed the invasion of the Trade Commissioner's office and the destruction of much of the office furniture by a member of a reactionary society who subsequently gave himself up to the police.

Later in the day, an attempt on the life of M. Kochetoff was made by the head of a well-known revolutionary organisation, named Supremate Nazime.

ASSAILANT ARRESTED.

The assailant was placed under arrest. He explained that his motive was revenge for the murder of the three Japanese fishermen at Kamchatka.

The Tokyo Foreign Office have expressed their regret that the incident should have occurred to the Soviet Ambassador and to M. Kochetoff and have promised an energetic investigation.—Reuter.

ACCUSATIONS OF INCONSISTENCY

PITTMAN RESOLUTION JEOPARDISED

LONDON, JULY 4.

WHILE THEY ADMIT ASTONISHMENT AT THE VIGOUR OF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S REJECTION OF ALL EFFORTS TOWARDS CONTROL OF CURRENCY FLUCTUATIONS, THE AMERICAN DELEGATION HAS DECIDED TO OPPOSE ANY MOVEMENT TO ADJOURN THE WORLD ECONOMIC CONFERENCE AT PRESENT.

The Americans are divided on the question of the withdrawal of the Pittman resolution which is viewed as conflicting with President Roosevelt's statement, which has occasioned considerable surprise among all the members of the delegation.

GOLD BLOC MAKE DECLARATION

The Pittman resolution suggests that gold should be re-established as the international measure of exchange values.

The use of gold should be confined to cover for the circulation of paper currency and as a medium for settling international balances payment.

SILVER CONFIDENCE

The resolution adds that in view of the necessity for restoring the confidence of the East in its purchasing medium, silver, which can only be done if the price of silver is restored to equilibrium with commodity price levels, steps should be taken to rehabilitate silver.

It is suggested with this object, inter alia, that an agreement be sought between the chief silver producing and silver-using countries to limit arbitrary sales upon the world market.

Senator Pittman, in introducing the resolution, declared it to be the first international recognition of silver since 1873.

Meanwhile, important conferences are going on between the delegations of the gold countries.

LITTLE TO BE DONE.

In the face of President Roosevelt's statement, the European gold bloc feel very strongly that there is not a great deal that their representatives can do at the conference.

At the same time, it is stated that it is possible that the economic experts might be asked to continue the discussions. A full and frank discussion is anticipated at the meeting of the Bureau of the Conference to be held to-day.

AMERICAN INCONSISTENCY.

It is stated that there is every possibility that the apparent inconsistency of President Roosevelt's statement with the fact that the Preparatory Commission put currency questions well in the forefront, will be raised.

M. Bonnet, the French Finance Minister, returned to London at midnight and immediately drove to the French delegation's hotel.

TURKEY'S POSITION.

French press reports to the effect that the Turkish Finance Minister had recently, in the course of a Budget debate in the National Assembly, intimated the possibility of devaluation of the Turkish Lira.

The Ministry had, on the contrary, denied the report.

A new picture of Mr. and Mrs. Mollison.

LEAVE LONDON FOR WALES

ATLANTIC FLIGHT PROJECT

London, July 3.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Mollison, the famous flier, took off from London in their aeroplane the "Seafarer" for Pendine Sands in Wales.

Pendine Sands will be the starting point of their proposed non-stop flight across the Atlantic to New York.

Mollison is the only airman who has ever flown solo across the Atlantic from East to East. No woman has ever crossed in that direction.

6,000-MILE RANGE.

Their machine has a flying range of over six thousand miles and they hope to take off in the course of the next week when they will be favoured by moonlight during the Atlantic crossing.

If their first venture is successful, they will attempt to break the world nonstop long-distance record with a trip from New York to Bagdad.

It is the first joint enterprise in which Mr. and Mrs. Mollison have undertaken and it is understood that it will terminate their exploits in the realm of record-breaking.—British Wireless.

VETERAN POLITICIAN

DEATH OF ARGENTINE LEADER

EX-PRESIDENT IRIGOYEN

Buenos Aires, July 3.

The death has occurred of the octogenarian politician, ex-President Irigoyen.

Dr. Irigoyen may be called the last of the Argentine caudillos. In a more turbulent country he would have been a dictator.

Dr. Irigoyen was born in the Province of Buenos Aires on a date and in a year impossible to determine. But he was over eighty. He was of modest origin, a criollo, or a native Argentine. His name showed a Basque ancestry and his swarthy complexion an admixture of Indian blood. He was six feet in height.

He received political tutelage under his uncle, Dr. Leandro Alem who led a semi-successful revolution in 1890 in which Irigoyen figured as chief of the revolutionary police force. Years later, Dr. Alem lost the support of many of his political friends and committed suicide.

REVOLUTIONARY.

From that time the nephew Hipolito remained chief of the party, refusing to consult, cooperate, collaborate, or concur with any other party or group and conspiring against the government meanwhile. He motivated a revolution in 1905 that expired within a few hours. His final triumph and elevation to the Presidency was, probably, due more to conservative bungling than to Radical merit.

MYSTERIOUS POWER.

He wielded a mysterious power that carried him to the very chair of the Presidency. He arrived at this most exalted position in the land without having pronounced a speech, written a book, held public office, taken part in business activities, frequented social circles, travelled over the republic, participated in meetings, personally directed the electorate, done any campaigning, been interviewed by the press, been photographed with his old father, or patted any babies on the head.

In spite of this herculean, for a politician, abstention, he was elected President with a majority of more than 400,000 votes. And that day the multitude unhitched the horses from his carriage and drew it for two miles to the Casa Rosada—the Government House—amid scenes of indescribable enthusiasm.

He was swept into the Presidency over the ruins of the Conservative Party which had for half a century governed the country.

ANTI-FOREIGN.

As President Irigoyen was responsible for keeping Argentina neutral during the World War against considerable Allied pressure. He was anti-foreign in every sense; his administration saw no new foreign capital entering Argentina.

To all appearances a Roman Catholic, he squashed a divorce law in Congress by sending a secretary along with a message telling the legislators that divorce was matter for a pious and not for politicians. He would have established trade labour unions and made membership obligatory and the unions responsible legally and judicially for conflicts affecting labour. But in 1918, during the so-called "Week of January," a period of general strike and paralysis, he was overthrown. He was not met with any resistance. Irigoyen's government until 1916, to say the least, was a failure.

This episode in the life of the octogenarian politician, ex-President Irigoyen.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

For Fashionable Afternoons

Patou Achieves Wide-Shouldered Effect With Tricks of Contrast

Restrained, new ways of achieving the modish shoulder width, give individual distinction to new semi-formal afternoon things. (Left) Black and white marocain are combined in new manner with white sleeves capped by the black shoulders. A string motif and hat decoration add interest. (Right) Brown and beige dotted crepe faconne has bouffant sleeves which give the required shoulders, in novel manner, and an asymmetrical cut to the body of the gown lends distinction. The brown straw hat is trimmed with beige grosgrain.

By Jean Patou

Pairs.—Any style worthy of interest is one which must leave its imprint on all the categories of clothes which together constitute what is known as the mode.

When a new fashion is perfectly understood, and the predominating feature has the necessary qualities to inspire a definite trend, then can you trace its principles in every type of dress, where they are more or less apparent.

In any event, whatever guise these principles may affect, they must never be used in too emphatic or too sudden a manner. Rather must their influence be divined in the guise of fantasies which soften the general effect.

Fantasy, With Discretion

There is no other type of dress to compare with the semi-formal afternoon gown where the couturier finds himself right on the limits of fantasy and where there are so many occasions of exaggerating, especially where a new style is concerned.

This is easily understood if you remember that because of the note of distinction women expect to find in models of this category, at the same time they also have to show a certain discretion. Monotony here is more or less attenuated according to the degree of fantasy applied.

The chief characteristic of the semi-formal afternoon dress is indeed a definite note of elegance which cannot be separated from certain principles of cut and trimming. I will take two concrete examples in my present collection to illustrate my meaning.

Contrast Hints Fullness

In the first model, a black and white combination, there is a decided effect of fullness at the top of the silhouette, a characteristic of the season. Here you will see that this movement can be translated in another way than by volume and that this impression can be conveyed by the introduction of a contrasting colour.

This is a means which has the added advantage of making the silhouette appear considerably narrower at the waist and neckline without extra bulk at the top.

Balance Must be Preserved

The same effect can be seen in a more sober and simple dress of dotted crepe faconne. Here the sleeves show the fashionable fullness but within the limits required of a relatively simple gown. The note of fantasy is supplied by the asymmetrical effects of cut and the play of dark and light backgrounds.

Asymmetry is always permissible and is certain of producing attractive results provided always it carries with it a perfectly balanced compensation in the basic structure of the gown.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

Hair-Line Eyebrows
Out of Favour

By Alicia Hart

Don't pluck your eyebrows to a skinny line this summer. Having them more natural looking is in vogue again. But if your eyebrows are bushy, for pity's sake pluck them in the right places until they take on a well-groomed look.

A woman who had a reputation for being somewhat of a shrew had her eyebrows "done" this winter. Formerly they grew almost together. The beautician cleared away every trace of an eyebrow for a space each side of the natural separation over the nose. Then they were plucked from the bottom until they seemed much higher than formerly.

The result gave her a pleasant calm look through the brow. And the slenderer, higher brows accentuated her eyes in a most alluring way. This simple act did more to make-over that particular woman than one would have dreamed.

And, looking nicer actually made her sweeter tempered and more appealing.

Too pale eyebrows and lashes detract from expression. They give a negative quality that no up-and-coming lady wants. Touch them up with just a little pencil or colour, and give character to your whole face.

Above all, brush your eyebrows. Clean out all the powder that gets into them when you make-up. Then shape them by pushing them up with the side of your little brush, then rounding off the top line with the other side of your brush.

Report of medical practitioner on
Dr. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS

WORLD-FAMOUS BLOOD AND NERVE TONIC.

Although for fifty years this formula has been the accepted specific for anemia (blood impoverishment) any new test by the medical profession has its value. The latest tests of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were made on the Group System. A qualified practicing physician selected twelve patients eleven of whom were known to be suffering in varying degrees from blood impoverishment. In each case preliminary blood examinations were made including the twelfth case which was a normal one. After four weeks treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills blood tests were again taken. The examinations were all taken in accordance with accepted modern medical practice, percentage of haemoglobin content and blood count taken. Out of the twelve cases ten showed an astonishing improvement in the condition of the blood. The normal case remained unchanged. The other case where no improvement was noted was discovered to have some dead teeth which were poisoning the bloodstream. In the course of his report the doctor conducting the tests stated: "I would not have believed the results possible had I not made the actual blood examinations myself." These tests amply prove that

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

MONNIE O'DARE is secretly engaged to DAN CARDIGAN whose parents want him to marry SANDRA LAWRENCE. CHARLES EUSTACE, stranger in town, admires Monnie as well as her younger sister, KAY. BILL, her older brother, plans to marry ANOIE GILLEN, whose divorce is pending, much to Mrs. O'DARE's dismay.

Sandra who pretends to be Monnie's friend is trying to win Dan away from her. Dan's mother and sister plan a trip to Wyoming. Sandra and several other young people are to accompany them. Dan does not want to go but feels obliged to.

CHAPTER XXIII

Sandra's father grumbled, "The place is darned uncomfortable. Della on the warpath—stopped me to say the new maid won't do and she'll leave if we don't get someone better. I wish," he observed testily, gazing across the table at his daughter, "that you hadn't rowed with what's-her-name—Hetty. It's extremely disagreeable to have things going on like this."

"I didn't row with her—as you put it, Daddy," explained Sandra. Candelight brooded over the big luxurious room. "She was insolent to me. I think I explained before—"

"Yes, but why did James have to dash off the same day, that's what I want to know?" pursued Gregory Lawrence. "He was a fine boy and I'd had him for years—ever since Higby died. You know I hate to drive myself and it's a job getting anybody properly trained off short notice. Most upsetting."

A welcome interruption (for Sandra) was provided by the removal of the soup plates. The new servant, as Mr. Lawrence's conversation had forecast, was disappointing. Her cap was habitually askew and she seemed uncommonly nervous. Sandra, waiting to present the question of the western trip, almost despaired. She knew her parent well.

"What you need—what both of us need," she interposed, skillfully, "is a vacation. This has been a miserable summer. Hot and muggy. Why don't you go up to Pine Lake on a fishing trip? It would do you good and Della could get another maid and train her while we were away."

"We?" The keen blue eyes under the bushy white eyebrows stared at her. "You wouldn't care for Pine Lake?"

"N-No." Sandra admitted the truth of that. "But I'd thought of—that is I have an invitation from the Cardigans to go out to Wyoming. Their cousins are on a dude ranch there. It sounds," finished Sandra with a playful note of whimsy, "as though it would be fun."

"Um-mm. I see." Mr. Lawrence considered this. "I can drive you about for a week or two until you get someone to replace James," Sandra said eagerly. "I'd love that. Then you'd go away—and so would I—and when we got back everything would be running like clock-work again."

"Sounds all right. With the Cardigans, eh?" rumbled Gregory Lawrence. "Looks as if that boy of theirs is making a dead set for my girl, eh?"

"Father!" She pretended to be confused. "How can you be so—"

"Just outspoken, that's all." But she could see his good humour was partially restored. Mrs. Peterman's roast chicken was delicious and so were the perfectly cooked and seasoned vegetables handed round timidly by the girl in the new uniform.

"I'd like seeing you settle down here, Sandra," he observed when they were once more alone. "Running around to Europe all the time, tramping to New York. I worry about you—don't mind saying so. Now Dan Cardigan's a good fellow, very good chap. You could do a lot worse although Dan'd do well to stick to business these days. What's he doing dashing off to a dude ranch with things as they are?"

"He doesn't in the least want to go," Sandra hastened to assure him. "It's his mother—she's most anxious for him to have a rest."

"Well, well, it's none of my affair, I suppose! Ring the bell, will you, there's a good girl? I want my coffee now."

That was all. Sandra wisely said no more. So far as she was concerned the western trip was settled. And she had, she congratulated herself, skidded nicely over the thin ice of Hetty's discharge. Usually she consulted her father on all household matters. Not that he wished to be bothered but he was jealous of his authority and ordinarily she would not have dismissed a servant without having first gone over the matter with him.

She still turned sick with rage whenever she thought of Hetty and the scene on the evening after the party. How dared she speak to Sandra in that way? It had been unendurable. The things Hetty had said! And James! He had been little better. To think—Sandra felt the slow colour burn her cheeks—that she had treated him so well, like an equal really, and then such ingratitude! Sandra clenched her fists, remembering. Mrs. Peterman had assured her next day that James and Hetty had gone off together. Sandra had thought better of James. It all proved how wrong one's judgment could be. She had thought James had possibilities. It was just as well the pair of them had gone to the city—to Cincinnati, Mrs. Peterman had said. You never knew how a girl like Hetty might talk. Not that anyone believed servants' gossip. Still—

Sandra supposed she had been just a trifle injudicious with James. But that was all. She couldn't help it if men admired her and showed it, could she? It wasn't that she was a flirt—never that. Flirting was cheap. Maybe there was some quality about her that men simply couldn't resist. Anyhow she hoped James wouldn't babble to Hetty about the time he and Sandra had picnicked together. That awful girl would be sure to misunderstand. How like a flaming fury she'd looked that night! Sandra, shivering afterward in the privacy of her room, had acknowledged she'd been a bit frightened.

Well, they'd left Belvedere, so that was all right. She had nothing to worry about. They'd have to get along without references from her. She had told James so very coldly the next morning.

"Not going any place to-night, child?" Her father's question interrupted her train of thought. She shook her head, smiling faintly. "I'm rather tired. I turned down several invitations. Want to rest."

It wasn't true but Sandra had to keep face. She was, to be truthful, rather frightened of an evening alone. Restless, on edge. That's why she went dashing off whenever she became bored. But you couldn't do that all your life, Sandra considered. And people had a way of being disappointing, no matter where one went. She was, she thought, rather perfect in her turnouts—clothes, make-up, everything. She knew how to be genuinely charming. Pretty enough, everyone said, to be in pictures or on the stage. Why not? But she didn't seem to want to stick to anything. Perhaps she hadn't found herself yet.

Last year when she'd been in New York, she'd been so bored she had even tried getting some work as an extra in a studio. They were making a picture in that big place over on Long Island. She had known a girl there, someone she'd met in art school, who was "making good." Lillas—that was the girl's name—Lillas Martingale wasn't a bit good-looking, really. Too thin and her eyes too big for her face. But it had been Lillas who had got a small part in a production and who had been sent to Hollywood.

Sandra had travelled all over Europe with her aunt, Mrs. Bayles from Boston. There'd been lots of men to meet and dance with. That Englishman at Cannes. She had liked him. And two or three youngsters in Paris. But they hadn't been serious. Neither had she. She'd come back to Belvedere the autumn before, had done over the house in a whirl of enthusiasm and then had settled back to see what happened. It was dull. That was why she had made friends with Monica O'Dare. Monica had something—some quality you couldn't describe. But Sandra dismissed her now with a shrug. Monnie didn't count. Nobody did if they got in your way when you wanted something. Sandra herself was a fighter and proud of it. If Monnie had lost Dan, if she wanted him and couldn't keep him for herself, it was just her hard luck.

"I may be hard—I may be ruthless," Sandra told herself, smiling whimsically. "But I got what I want."

Dawdling in her room later with a new French novel, wearing sheer white pajamas splashily monogrammed in scarlet, she heard her father's voice.

Here's a sure sign of returning summer—John D. Rockefeller, Sr., the oil magnate, back from the southland, shown as he left Mother's Day services at the First Baptist Church in Lakewood, N. J.

If the mails were a little late out around Ravenswood, Ind., no one ought to complain. For here is Postmaster Roy Goodpasture in his boots in front of his postoffice during floods which followed heavy rains in Indiana and Illinois.

If this picture is puzzling, then the army air corps is satisfied. For the planes are camouflaged, to blend into the pattern of the earth below. This picture, taken by the air corps during maneuvers between Dayton, O., and Ft. Knox, Ky., shows two giant cigar-shaped bombers of the latest type. Each carries a ton of bombs and a crew of five men and can attain 220 miles an hour.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

YESTERDAY'S MARKET FIRM

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was firm yesterday. Business done 6,720,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports that stocks, grains and cotton rose impressively due to weakness in the U. S. dollar on account of President Roosevelt's rejection of the stabilization plan. There was nationwide buying and once during the day tickers were twelve minutes behind. The Cotton Exchange reported that world consumption of May cotton amounted to 2,212,000 bales, being the largest for any month since January 1930, as compared with 2,032,000 bales for the month of April and 1,864,000 bales for May 1932. Cable received during our Night Service at 11.40, from Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, New York. Excellent trade news and the announcement of the United States' plan to raise general price level are being reflected in the stock market which looks higher, especially rails, steels and harvester issues. Wheat: Sterling aided bullish belief that with high temperatures in the Southwest and little rain in the spring wheat belt the market can easily work higher.

NEW MENACE ON CHINA COAST?

The history of piracy on the China Coast contains few episodes so revolting as the story of the seizure of the Sheng An and the dastardly cold-blooded destruction of life which accompanied the shocking affair. Three of the victims were slain in their sleep; none was given a word of warning or a vestige of mercy; one of the victims was a woman. Such was the barbarity exhibited that, but for the known facts and the grim confessions, it would be almost unbelievable that Europeans could be guilty. The type of individual capable of such outrages against all human decency usually confine themselves to their natural haunts, the underworlds of Chicago, Marseilles and such places—they usually herd among their own kind. The appearance of a gang of desperadoes indulging in wholesale murder without provocation or excuse upon the China coast is profoundly disquieting even while the "adventure" has come to a sensational end in the arrest of all responsible. It has long been recognised that an enterprise which a group of twenty or so Chinese coolies periodically carries to a successful conclusion, could be efficiently tackled by a mere handful of desperate Europeans. The Sheng An piracy may bring retribution upon the heads of the perpetrators, but the start they have made, brought to disaster merely by accident, might easily encourage further experiment. The menace is probably more apparent than real, although, against that, who would have believed the Sheng An piracy to be possible, except in fiction, until it actually occurred? There is the admission that plans for the outrage had been developing since last year to provide food for thought. And if further citation were needed, five foreigners boarded the Tientsin Maru at Tangku on Saturday morning in circumstances which aroused grave suspicion—before anything was known of the fateful affair on the Sheng An. The facts are disturbing, to say the least.

NOTES OF THE DAY

Settlement of the trade war between Britain and Soviet Russia is the most sensible act of both governments for some time past and congratulations are due to Sir John Simon and M. Litvinoff. The happy outcome of their conversations could not have been easy of achievement. The chief obstacle to success was national dignity, which frequently leads otherwise reasonable people along paths from which they instinctively shy. In this case, the trade boycotts had gone on long enough for both governments to realise the futility of the procedure, to discover that embargoes never did anybody any good. Once Russia saw her way clear to release Messrs. MacDonald and Thornton, therefore, the war was abandoned with feelings of relief on both sides. If the episode has caused Britain and Russia to look at a mutual problem from the other's point of view for a brief while, it may yet prove to have served a useful purpose.

Canton-Hankow Railway.

Although a good deal of nonsense has been written about the plans for completing the Canton-Hankow Railway, it is safe to say that when through traffic to Hankow has been established, a filip to Hongkong trade will result. Modern developments in the realm of transport have destroyed the attractiveness of the original dream of a through route from Kowloon to Calais, but in opening up the hinterland of China and providing a short route to Hankow and the Upper Yangtze, the project is decidedly worth while. A substantial saving in time and costs will be afforded the Hankow importer and exporter who makes Hongkong his main supply depot and he will not be slow to grasp the advantages.

Supporting Press Freedom.

Newspapermen are certain to be interested in the new law put into effect in New Jersey recently, under which no court, grand jury or other body could require any reporter to divulge the source of confidential information used in news articles. This law simply recognises what has long been the code of the profession; that a reporter is in honour bound to protect the person from whom he gets information of legitimate interest to the public. Courts and juries have frequently tried to compel reporters to reveal their sources, and in most instances they have failed. All too often they have made the attempt simply because the reporter has made public something that certain highly placed persons wanted concealed, and the action has been an effort to get the reporter into trouble such laws provide fresh bulwarks for the freedom of the press.

Another Blow To "Prestige."

The last of the English players made their exit from the Men's Singles championship at Wimbledon yesterday, leaving overseas competitors in complete control. The Englishman is reputed for the carefree, nonchalant manner in which he takes his sport, and "maskee" is usually the popular reaction to reverses such as have been sustained at Wimbledon. Which is perhaps, just as well. Nevertheless, newspaper sports writers, in their endeavour to arouse the Englishman to a more serious and painstaking study of his sport, have made England prestige-conscious. The elimination of Austin, Perry and Hughes before the semi-finals is another blow at our "ability-to-win" prestige, although happily our good name as sportsman remains unimpaired. This is a far more important consideration.

Repeal in Finland.

One of the promises made in the campaign to rid Finland of prohibition was that repeal would do away with smuggling of liquor, for under the dry law smuggling had proved troublesome. Wets claimed that with an easy access to liquor all this would end. Now that the dry law is no more in Finland, it is possible to check promises with results. It was recently reported that rumrunners have been particularly active lately in the Baltic. Smugglers, who have found safe hiding places among the many small islands in the Baltic, have repeatedly defied gunboats and coast guard cutters. One rumrunner, on being challenged by coast guard officials, showed a gun. The Finnish Government is so concerned about the increase in smuggling that, because one of the liquor ships is described as a "British rumrunner," Finnish authorities are anxious to confer with the British Government on the matter. The case of Finland is illuminating. It shows clearly that the promises of repeal-militant are an uncertain index to the lawlessness of a nation.

P. C. SELIM MAHMOUD VINDICATED

A TALE OF HONGKONG COURTS

By C. V.-L. for the Telegraph

P. C. D1001 Selim Mahmoud of the Central Division was sad in an exquisite way. Being sad, it follows also that he was listless. With a mind completely detached, he mechanically entered Kali Kai (here translated as Curry Street) without realising his progress. The unlicensed hawkers, who had taken possession of the pitch, started up on his approach, but half-way down the street they stopped to stare back in wonderment at this indifferent, transformed molo chai. On other mornings he had given them quite a run, but to-day he did not as much as look in their direction. It was true that for one brief moment he did emit a spark of ill-temper. More from force of routine than any special interest, he paused before a basket abandoned by a fleeing hawker, and after first gazing all unseeing at it, had suddenly and viciously lunged out with his foot.

But even this performance could not hold his interest for long. After a last violent kick which sent the unoffending article tottering over on its side, he continued on his way, with a return of his former air of listless indifference.

Plainly something was decidedly abnormal with P. C. Selim Mahmoud, who is known to be ordinarily a most cheerful member of his contingent. If the truth be told, he was thoroughly disappointed, and in that condition of mind summed up in the word "fed-up." Only that morning the sahib on the Bench at Central saw fit to throw out his case (his third within a week) because, he was informed, it was trivial and lacked essential evidence.

These minute points of law always worried P. C. Selim Mahmoud, who never could see the necessity. He argues that if a person carries a basket of vegetables in the street he is a hawker. If he hands the vegetables to another person he is selling them. And if he sells them without holding a hawker's licence, the import becomes clear: he has committed a distinct breach of the Hawkers' Ordinance.

Right at the outset of his career our policeman had been initiated to the mysteries of that Ordinance, and its application in an elementary form to an everyday experience on his beat has for him the same facility as returning a fish to the water that is its natural element.

Despite the care with which he has been drilled, P. C. Selim Mahmoud still retains firmly planted notions of his own that are difficult to shift. Consequently, he was plainly distressed when informed that it was not sufficient to say "I saw a sale". The handing over of the goods to the buyer, the passing of the payment sum, and the accompanying words—in short, the various progressive acts legally constituting the transaction which only could be accepted as evidence, had not impressed him with their necessity. Laboriously poring over the entry in his note-book, he was disappointed when, half-way, the sahib on the Bench stopped the case.

Pondering over the proceedings afterwards, his bewilderment grew. Only the other day his case book had come under suspicion because it was a complete blank. Viewed against the fact that his beat during that month was laid through a district notoriously over-run with unlicensed hawkers, it was hinted that he had been wilfully negligent.

On previous occasions he was able to take refuge behind the plea that the Inspector sahib threw out the few cases he had brought in. On this occasion he was unable to again advance that defence.

He came away from the dreaded interview with the Police Chief with a feeling of having been severely reprimanded.

He thought it was just too bad. His mind went back to what an Inspector sahib, that very morning, had declared in the Court. The Inspector had told the sahib on the Bench that "these Indian constables are not capable of doing anything except catching hawkers."

Of course he had had nothing to do with it—particularly. The case in point belonged to another man, a comrade, but the generality of the criticism made him resentful. The Magistrate had also chided the colleague for "catching women and children", although he (Selim Mahmoud) knew they sometimes gave more trouble than anyone else.

"Catch one of your size," the sahib had also said to the colleague, and it left Selim Mahmoud, always anxious to learn, floundering helplessly about for an explanation.

Did the sahib intend they were to catch "only men"? And here P. C. Selim Mahmoud stopped suddenly on his tracks, and frowned contemplatively at a mean-looking street coolie, the while he puzzled over the next requirement. "Of his size?"

He himself measures 6 feet 7 inches in his policeman's No. 11 shoes, and it will be difficult to find amongst these cheena one of his bulkiness to catch. Surely the Sahib had been "good" enough to make a joke about it. He could not have been serious.

If the strictures were literally carried out, and inch for inch, and pound for pound were required, he came to the conclusion that, short of weighing these hawkers with their own scales before arresting them (which would be putting the cart before the horse) the only individual he was permitted, logically, to arrest would be P. C. Selim Mahmoud—HIMSELF.

He would, in that event, have a. to chase himself, b. to take a running jump at himself.

From P. C. Selim Mahmoud's standpoint, therefore, he is to be readily consoled with. He feels that he has been grievously misunderstood and unappreciated. With a little further training, he was convinced he could qualify for a brainy job in the C. I. D., but he agreed that as a detective tracking the desperate criminal to his lair, he would be as conspicuous while on the trail as a South Sea Islander flaunting a grass skirt.

This patrolling of the streets as a necessary part of the policing of a city is all very well and useful by itself. Still it suggested that by keeping him down to it, the people higher up were thinking he was not (Continued on Page 7.)

The Very Idea!

INSPIRATION.

By Eddie "Perspiration" Kelly.
HAVE you ever sat back in a comfortable chair, waiting for an inspiration—swaying gently backwards and forwards, soothing your depression with the fumes of a fog, feet on the tables, and cuspidor close handy?

NO? Well, that's how we were to-day, when a boy came timidly into our sanctum, bearing the Telegraph on a silver salver.

"With the Editor's compliments," he said in an awed voice, and after salaaming in approved fashion, silently withdrew.

We glanced casually through the paper, casting an approving eye here and there, and making special note of the excellence of the last column on page six.

We looked through the Court reports, wondering absently whether someone had usurped our sahib's authority and had gone crying to Mr.

Wynne Jones. We dislike people who cry. Pete cries after he's had a few whiskies. Therefore we dislike Pete.

But stop. What is this we see? A man put his head through a windscreen and broke his arm.

We suspect the Telegraph is hiding something. We suspect that his fellow experienced just the same sort of thing that happened to us a few weeks ago. Pete was driving us home in his car after a party with a few of the boys. Somehow, we must have dropped off to sleep. When we woke up, there was a fellow looking straight at us, with a nasty leer on his face. We promptly hit him—and put our hand through the windscreen. Pete hit us on the head with a cranking handle. Don't you see what's happened? Just another case of history repeating itself—but the Telegraph wouldn't say so.

Anyway, it's not so very disgraceful, even if the Telegraph was right. Many a man has done worse than put his head through a windscreen and break his arm. We don't know what your home is like, but we have often put our foot in the soup, and had a sore head for days.

Then, you must have heard of the Chinese general who had a hand in some graft and lost his head.

And how many of Hongkong's Bright Young Things have lost their heads over a naval officer and broken their hearts.

We could go on like this for columns and columns. But what's the use? We're searching for inspiration.

THE CHOICE.

It won't be an easy decision. But it is hard to see how we can avoid making it, one way or the other. We are rapidly approaching a great fork in the road and there is no middle course. Before long we must make one of the most important choices in our history.

Yes, we are wondering whether we shall pay the wine-merchant or the rent.

A BETTER WORLD.

In spite of all our troubles, we have a great deal to be thankful for. By keeping that in mind, we can help to advance the dream which has hovered over our horizon for a quarter of a century, the dream that it is possible to make the world better, a new life possible for the average man, the dream that that freedom and contentment and happiness could be made an everyday reality.

Yes, the dream that the muzzling order had been extended to headaches.

Strange thing, our headache when we read the column always enquires why we don't take an Aspirin instead of boring Our Admirable and Extending Public with our creature lila.

But we've never sunken to the low level of calling her a creature yet.

CAR MODES.

This Tiger Car man has challenged our self-respect and the little Vanity we permit ourselves. Matilda's a very nice car or at least so we thought. Now she looks shabby and do mode, apes vous and so are you, so to speak. We are no longer happy.

If next week, you see an outsize blonter tearing down the street, gleaming fishily from codfish eyes, that'll be us, or rather, Matilda with us playing the part of Jonah. There will be one marked difference between Matilda and the average blonter, however. Matilda will make at handy distance from the steering wheel.

We didn't want to leave the year, but simply couldn't afford to keep our home open.

"KENT TELLS THE WORLD"*AMAZING GROWTH OF INDUSTRY

Kent, the county of undulating hills, picturesque hop fields, rich fruit gardens, lovely lanes, sun-kissed seaside resorts and health-giving inland watering towns, is the Kent which has been given to the world up to now.

But (and this will come probably as big a surprise to the non-resident Kentish man or man of Kent as it does to the Englishman claiming allegiance to other parts of the homeland), Kent has its industries. And there is nothing of the mushroom growth about them. All are sturdy, progressive young industries playing a big part in the nation-wide effort to stimulate English trade in the face of old man Depression.

Kent is as proud now of these industries as she always has been of her glorious scenic attractions, and to prove it the Association of Men of Kent and Kentish Men have just published an extremely interesting booklet, which, by its very title, reveals its object. "Kent Tells the World", is not only a valuable guide to the home-going Englishman from the tropics and Dominions as well as the foreigner, but is a mine of information concerning Kent's new industries.

The reader is given an informative and entertaining introduction to Kent's collieries at Snowdown near Dover, the paper making mills at Gravesend and Aylesford, the brewing industry at Maidstone, Paddock Wood, Hythe, Watlington, and Canterbury, tile making at Marley's works, Harrietsham, the tremendous importance of Dover as a shipping port and a score of other young, but growing undertakings all of which are taking a big part in the industrialism of England.

The beauties of West Kent are not ignored. Tunbridge Wells with its romantic Pantiles, lovely Common and tonic waters; historical Penshurst, busy Maidstone, charming old Canterbury. Each with its peculiar attractions is adequately described.

The publication, the first of its kind, is attractively presented, being profusely illustrated and extremely well printed by the Kent Messenger. Through this medium, it is impossible for Kent to "tell the World" in vain.—"Man of Kent."

efficient enough for any other job. Again the words of the Inspector ranked.

Passing down the street, the top note of a fretful baby broke in on his thoughts above the din of the slums. Next he heard the mother trying to soothe it. She crooned, in a sing-song voice, "Ah Cha lai lo," which means "Huh! Indian Uncle is coming!"

The desired effect was gained on the baby. As he approached, the child now hushed into silence, stared at him with wide open eyes. Slowly a smile broke through the seriousness of P. C. Selim Mahmoud's face. Here at least was where he was of service to a community afflicted with fretful babies. He thought: could the Inspector but see him at that moment, he would have cause to revise his opinion.

With a growing belief in an accomplished vindication, the melancholy thoughts that had troubled P. C. Selim Mahmoud that day were dispelled, and he continued serenely on his way.

CAN BREAKDOWN OF CONFERENCE BE AVERTED?

first issues of Mr. Cordell Hull's promised statement of America's attitude on measures of remedy for the world's currency problems.

At the outset, Mr. Hull made it clear that in issuing the declaration he acted in his capacity as Secretary of State, and not as the chairman of the American delegation to the World Economic Conference. He pointed out that this matter of currency issues was purely one for the consideration of the Treasury Department.

He would regard it as almost a world tragedy, he added, if the Conference, in advance of any serious effort to consider the problems for which it was called, were to allow itself to be diverted by proposals of a purely artificial and temporary nature, comprising an experiment to affect the monetary exchange of a few nations only.

Mr. Hull declared he did not relish the thought that inaction on such a course of action should be made the excuse for the continuance of the basic economic errors underlying much of the world-wide depression.

INTERNAL CONDITIONS.

The sound internal economic system of a nation was a greater factor in its well-being than the price of its currency. In the changing terms of currencies of other nations, declared Mr. Hull. That was why reduced cost of Government, an adequate Government income and ability to meet Government debts, were all so important to the ultimate stability of any country.

"Let me be frank and say that the United States seeks the kind of dollar which, a generation hence, will have the same purchasing and debt-paying power as the dollar value we hope to obtain in the near future," Mr. Hull asserted.

The United States' broad purpose, Mr. Hull pointed out, was a permanent stabilisation of the currencies of all the nations.

Gold, or gold and silver, may well continue to be the metallic reserve behind a currency; but this, he added, was not the time to dissipate gold reserves.

"When a majority of the nations have produced balanced budgets and are living within their means, we could properly discuss a better distribution of the world's gold and silver supplies as national currency reserves," Mr. Hull insisted.

He concluded by affirming that mitigation of existing trade embargoes would offer a sounder course towards restoration of world commerce than the temporary fixing of exchange.

AT THE CROSSROADS.

President Roosevelt's decisive "NO" to gold nations' hopes, brought the Conference to a crossroads of real progress or failure.

A meeting of Central Banks which this morning heard Mr. Hull's statement, rose at 12.15 p.m. and its members were generally convinced that no further reason exists for prolongation of the Conference. The gold nations now more openly are canvassing for adjournment, while the British delegation is making an effort at conciliation.

A suggestion that a resolution for adjournment may be placed before the Bureau to-day or tomorrow as yet has found neither confirmation nor denial, though the feeling of the gold nations seems summed up in the words of one of the gold country delegates: "I am afraid this means the end of the Conference."

President Roosevelt's latest pronouncement having definitely removed the hope of American help on the stabilisation issue, it is felt the next move lies with Britain. Events are likely to move very rapidly and a definite lead from Britain is confidently

BRITISH GOVT. AND IRAQ "SPECIAL TREATMENT" QUESTION

London, July 3.

Answering a question in the House of Commons Mr. L. Horrell-Bellah said the Chancellor of the Exchequer had asked intending borrowers to refrain for the present from coming on the market for foreign issues.

If the Iraq Government, which stood in special relation to the British Government, requested special treatment, the extent to which their proposals would lead to the placing of orders in this country would be one of the considerations taken into account in reaching a decision.—British Wireless.

TESTS IN IMMINENT DANGER

London, June 27.

According to the News-Chronicle, influential Australians now in land are urging the Australian Board of Control to cancel the 1934 tour "unless the M.C.C. adopts a different attitude over the bodyline bowling controversy."

The receipt of such advice and loathness to accept it accounts for the Australian delay in replying to the M.C.C. cable suggesting a conference and in the meantime all arrangements for the tour are hanging fire.

Writing in the News-Chronicle, A. E. R. Gilligan declares that the danger of a cancellation of the England-Australia Tests is most imminent and suggests the immediate calling of a conference of Englishmen and Australians, including as many past international captains as possible.

WATER POLO.*Chung Sing's Win Against C.B.C.

In the water polo league match between the Chung Sing team and the Chinese Bathing Club, played at the Chinese Bathing Club in North Point yesterday afternoon, the latter was beaten, the score being 2-0.

In a friendly match played between the Hongkong and Canton South China Athletic Associations combined team against the Young Companions at the S.C.A.A. pool, the former team won by 7-0.

expected, possibly within the next few hours.

It is noteworthy in this connection that, prior to the gold nations' meeting, a conference of the British and dominion delegates was called to consider a joint policy.

GOLD NATIONS' REPLY

A declaration by the gold countries, to be issued following Mr. Hull's statement, is now awaiting the signature of Signor Jung of Italy and is most brief and to the point. It consists of two paragraphs, the first affirming that the gold nations will now act independently of Britain and the United States, and proceed upon a common policy conducted by their Central Banks; the second describing the machinery whereby the gold countries will co-operate.

American circles are amazed at President Roosevelt's statement, which they interpret as extremely nationalistic and isolationist, some Americans even criticising it on the ground that it ill becomes the United States to lecture other countries on balanced budgets when the United States budget itself is far from being balanced.

It is understood that President Roosevelt rejected the American policy in a statement drawn up by Mr. Hull and Professor Moley last night and cabled the substitute to Mr. Hull this morning.

VOTE TO ADJOURN.

As a sequel to Mr. Hull's declaration, the sub-Committee on Commercial Policy decided to adjourn on July 6, on a resolution moved by the Swiss delegate and supported by the French and Italians.

Other committees are likely to follow suit.—Reuter.

"INSTRUCTION DOES NOT PREVENT WASTE OF TIME OR MISTAKES; AND MISTAKES THEMSELVES ARE OFTEN THE BEST TEACHERS OF ALL"—Froude.

The month of June, just passed, was no better and no worse, as far as temperatures go, than the same month in 1932. The temperature reached 90 degrees on four days this year, compared with once in June 1932, but the average for the month was about the same—between 83 and 84 degrees. The minimum temperature recorded last month was 76 degrees, compared with 77 in June, 1932.

A BLACK DAY FOR BRITAIN

London, July 3.

Defeats, which not only caused the complete elimination of Englishmen from the men's singles championship, but which are bound to have serious effects on Britain's Davis Cup chances, featured Wimbledon to-day, when H. W. Austin and G. P. Hughes were beaten in the quarter-finals.

H. W. Austin, the last English player to lose in the men's singles at Wimbledon yesterday (Planet News).

turesque figures on the international tennis courts to-day was responsible for the elimination of Austin, beating him in one of the most remarkable games seen at Wimbledon this year.

G. P. Hughes ran up against that giant-killer, Jack Crawford, and no surprise was occasioned by the Englishman's exit. The only thing it served to emphasize was the formidable opposition which Britain will meet when the Davis Cup semi-final contest comes off in a fortnight's time.

THE LAST FOUR.

The semi-finalists in the men's singles are:
Ellsworth Vines (America)
Jiro Satoh (Japan)
Jack Crawford (Australia)
Henri Cochet (France).

Satoh, obviously a firm believer in the "element of surprise," had

HOCKEY ASSN: EORMED

SUPPORT FROM ALL CLUBS

The formation of the Hongkong Hockey Association became an accomplished fact at a meeting of representatives of local clubs held at the Y.M.C.A. last evening under the chairmanship of Mr. A. A. Dand, who was elected by the meeting to preside.

The following clubs were represented: Hongkong Hockey Club (Mr. A. A. Dand), Hongkong University (Mr. O. E. Sosa), St. Andrew's Club (Mr. R. H. Wong), Radio Sports Club (Mr. Surjit Singh), Kowloon Indians Tennis Club (Mr. Jahan Dad), Y.M.C.A. (Mr. D. McLellan) and Club de Recreo (Mr. A. M. Xavier).

Mr. F. A. Kemp, Acting Hon. Secretary, was also present. The chairman said that the object of the meeting was to consider the proposals which had been made at the previous meeting, and to consider any views which might be put forward in connexion with the formation of the Association.

It was mentioned that the Central British Association, which was not represented, had expressed its intention of supporting the association if formed. The Army and Navy, who were already members of the English Hockey Association, would also join, provided no competitions for trophies were conducted.

In discussing the question of competitions for trophies the chairman enquired which clubs desired competitions for trophies. The Radio Sports Club and the Kowloon Indian Tennis Club representatives were the only clubs in favour, but they were prepared to support the Association if it were decided to affiliate with the English Association which barred competitions for trophies.

The chairman mentioned that it had been pointed out that the Army and Navy had played for trophies during the past season. He remarked that he understood from Com. Leigh that the Navy had played for their last trophy and that all prizes had now been withdrawn from competition.

Mr. McLellan (Y.M.C.A.) proposed that the Hongkong Hockey Association be formed. Seconded by Mr. Jahan Dad (Kowloon Indians), the motion was unanimously carried. The officials were then elected. In proposing the name of Mr. E. W. Hamilton as president, the chairman said that Mr. Hamilton had had considerable experience in hockey and he was sure he would accept the position. Mr. Hamilton was unanimously elected.

Messrs. E. J. R. Mitchell and A. A. Dand were elected Vice-Presidents. Mr. F. A. Kemp was elected Hon. Secretary and Mr. R. H. Wong, Hon. Treasurer. The names of the officers and representatives from each affiliated club.

Austin on a piece of string in the first two sets of their match, and the Englishman appeared set for an experience something like that which he had against Vines in the final last year when he was beaten in three sets.

Satoh, forcing the pace, and executing some brilliant winning shots, went into an immediate lead. His drop shots, by which he lured Austin up to the net and then passed him with dazzling side-line drives were masterly. Austin countered with deep driving to the corners, but the Japanese revealed intelligent anticipation and quickly gained a grip on the exchange.

AUSTIN HITS BACK.

The Englishman, by his persistency succeeded in taking the first set to the twelfth game, but Satoh did not look in danger of losing it. The Japanese, fairly warmed up by this time, initiated an offensive in the second set which left Austin standing and the Japanese swept through to win at the ninth game.

Then came the transformation. Satoh, apparently playing to the accepted tactics of resting for the third set with an eye to finishing off the match in the fourth, found himself outplayed.

Austin sent over a barrage of terrific drives, following them up with smashes and volleys. He took the third set at 6-2 and the fourth at the same score, and it looked as though Satoh had shot his bolt.

But he came back in a very refreshed state, and astonished the crowd and Austin by again taking up the running. He regained his touch and went away to a long lead with a series of glorious strokes which left Austin well beaten.

The Englishman, taken un-awares by the recovery, offered little opposition and the end came with such rapidity as to create something of an anti-climax.

WHIRLWIND TENNIS.

Jack Crawford did unto Hughes as he did to Cochet a month previously. He played whirlwind tennis for three sets at the end of which Hughes could point to winning seven games.

The Australian was irresistible in the first two sets, and despite the terrific heat, set up a pace which left Hughes completely at sea. Crawford roared off game after game, and was only pulled up after taking a lead of 6-1, 6-1.

How Yale Beat Harvard in Athletic Contest

With Keith Brown setting the tempo by scoring a pair of magnificent victories, Yale downed Harvard, 73½ to 61½, in their fortieth annual track and field games to conclude its dual meet season unbeaten.

Brown, a sophomore, switched his activities from the pole vault runway to the high jump pits with such signal success that he cleared the bar at the superb height of 14 feet 1½ inches in the one and at 6 feet 6½ inches in the other.

In both instances he set new meet records and now all-time Yale records as well as accounting for one of the most amazing doubles ever made in the history of track.

COMBS ALSO SETS RECORD.

As a record-breaker he was not without company, however, since his team-mate, Harry Combs, also set a new mark in the javelin throw with a toss of 188 feet 5 inches. But Combs' effort could not compare with the twin feats of the black-haired youngster just completing his first year as a varsity athlete.

More records certainly would have fallen had not the meet been held on a metric basis for the first time. This meant that all track marks were new meet figures.

Karl Warner's 0.48 for 400 metres, Eddie Calvin's 0.211 for the 200 and Johnny Grady's 0.235 for the 200-metre low hurdles were among the better than any previous performances that had been made for progressing without running up against anything very serious, accomplished his best performance when he put paid to J. L. Stoecken, the young American, who has been making Wimbledon sit up and take notice.

Cochet adopted his usual methods of losing the first set, but once he had warmed to his task, Stoecken found he had no strokes in his equipment to offset the brilliant attacking half volleys and dexterous net work of the Frenchman. Cochet won the next three sets in a row, the task becoming easier as the game progressed.

Ellsworth Vines played championship-winning tennis to overcome Menzel, the Czech in four sets. The American, after winning the first two sets, had the game in his pocket. He rested for the third and came back stronger than ever in the fourth.

MRS. MOODY WINS.

Mrs. Wills-Moody became the first semi-finalist in the women's event, when she defeated Mlle. Payot of Switzerland, once again without the loss of a set.

Mlle. Payot offered courageous resistance in the first set which went to ten games, but the all-court superiority of Mrs. Moody was apparent, and she finally won with convincing ease.

Mixed Doubles ties formed the remainder of the day's programme, the most interesting result of which was the success of Aoki and Miss Barbara Feltham against Billington and Miss Knapp in the third round.

The Japanese and his Surrey county partner played excellent tennis and must be seriously reckoned for the title.

Ito and Miss Hardwicke, who went perilously near to defeat in the second round, made their exit when they came up against Condon, the South African and Miss Joan Ridley. The Japanese and his partner played gallantly, but did not enjoy the same team work as their opponents.

Miki and Miss Dorothy Round had a three set match before winning against Marcel Bernard and Mlle. Henrotin, the French pair. The same happened to Nuno and Miss Noel before they advanced to the second round at the expense

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS

Ramsay Scores a Clever Win

J. V. Ramsay played wonderful lawn bowls against W. Wotherpoon, an older and more experienced player, to win 21-18 in an Open Championship match at the Craigengower C.C. last night.

The score of 18 all reflected the keen spirit that pervaded the match from the start, and the spectators enjoyed the exhibition. Ramsay has certainly earned his entry into the next round and having disposed of such a redoubtable opponent as Wotherpoon, there is every chance of his going further.

On the same green M. Omar beat D. Rumjahn 21-14, in a game that was marked by an extraordinary incident. Rumjahn was lying three at the seventh end when a wood from Omar wicketed a front wood and trailed his feet, leaving three for Omar. A. E. Coates passed into the next round of the competition at the expense of the opponent whom he beat 22-11. Ferguson picked up most of his points on the last head.

AL BROWN STILL CHAMPION.

BANTAMWEIGHT TITLE RETAINED.

London, July 3.
Al. Brown of Panama, holder of the world's bantamweight boxing championship retained his title at Manchester to-night, when he beat Johnny King of Manchester on points in a fifteen round contest.—Reuter.

Tennis Clashes in "B" Div.

ATTRACTIVE GAMES THIS AFTERNOON

There is an exceptionally interesting list of matches due for decision in the "B" Division of the tennis league this afternoon.

The K. C. C. have the task on beating the C.R.C. at Kowloon; the United Services Recreation Club entertain the I.R.C., the Hongkong Cricket Club visit the Civil Service and the Recreio make the trip to South China Athletic.

A lot to-day will depend on adaptability. All players are slightly out of form having been kept away from the courts by the recent rains, and the first to settle down will go a long way towards winning.

The K.C.C. have another new line-up. Gray is unable to turn out and Burnett is partnered by Hambley. J. Rodger, who previously teamed with Gray has C. I. Stapleton as his partner. A new combination, but one which should do well. S.E. and D. S. Green make the third pair.

PROGRAMME.
The programme is:
K.C.C. v. C.R.C.

C.S.C.C. v. H.K.C.C.

Sandra relaxed on her chaise longue. Dim kitchen sounds drifted upstairs, the clink of china, of silver being handled and put away. The chirp of crickets came to her from the garden. It was stupid, killing time like this at home. She must have dozed because presently she came back from some dim dream to the realisation that the new maid's voice spoke to her respectfully from the doorway.

"Telephone for you, Miss Sandra." Still drowsy, she took the instrument. "Yes, Yes." Her voice quickened. She sat up-right.

JAPANESE SOLDIERS SUFFER SEVERELY

Tokyo, July 3. The heat is taking a heavy toll of lives among the troops stationed at the military base at Mount Fuji.

PROTECTION for your family's "DANGER PERIOD"

The following is a brief explanation of how our Family Income Policy can protect your family during that critical period when your children are dependent, and when a maximum monthly income is most needed.

Ordinarily, the sum required, invested conservatively, to provide an adequate monthly income is so large as to be beyond the reach of most people.

By means of our Family Income Policy, which requires a comparatively small amount of insurance, at a slightly increased rate, a guaranteed monthly income can be provided during the period when your children are still dependent. At the end of this period, your wife will receive a cash settlement equal to the full value of the policy, or, if she desires, a yearly income as long as she lives.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY

In the past the matrimonial agency has provided the theme for many an amusing picture and stage-play. But surely, in all the long and variegated history of three up-to-date assistances of Cupid, there are few that can compare in ingenuity with the matrimonial bureau which figures in "Marry Me," showing at the King's Theatre.

"Marry Me" which was directed by Wilhelm Thicke, features that charming and gifted young actress, Renate Muller, whose "Sunshine Suite" is one of the very happiest of filmgoers' memories. Renate, who in this case takes the part of Ann Linden, a recordist in a gramophone factory, discovers that the young gentleman upon whom she has set her heart is not as responsive as he might be. For it is an acknowledged fact that there are some folk who do not realize the loveliness that lies under their very noses!

And so behold our Ann enlisting the assistance of a most unique matrimonial bureau. It is run by an old friend, Harry Green, and his charming transatlantic comedian. His assistant is none other than Billy Carrill, (whose success in vaudeville is tremendous), and his clients, who represent every social stratum include none other than our joyous old friend, George Robey. Robey takes the role of a Hungarian farmer in search of a bride. His name is Aloysius Novak, but he enjoys this advantage over the facilities usually offered by matrimonial bureaus for our resourceful friend, Harry Green, makes "talkie" films of his clients, in order that worshippers at the shrine of Cupid may see their possible affinities with a minimum of trouble.

Thus we find a radiant Ann, listening to the middle-aged Novak narrating his possessions, and his charms. Thus we find also Ann's young friend in an awful stew at the prospect of his little colleague marrying an elderly admirer. And so you see, it all comes right in the end.

Habitual Reeler

The most inebricated man on the screen. That's the title that Charlie Ruggles, featured with Phillipa Holmes, Dorothy Jordan and Johnny Mack Brown in "70,000 Witnesses," football mystery drama, showing from Thursday at the Queen's Theatre is slowly and surely acquiring for himself.

It describes him only on the screen, however. In private life he's a very sober fellow.

Ever since he crushed to movie fame with his portrayal of a drunken reporter in "Gentlemen of the Press," Ruggles has been cast as a drunk with few exceptions. One of them was in "Love Me To-night," the Maurice Chevalier picture, in which he is featured.

He's a drunken reporter again in "70,000 Witnesses." This time he's sent to a college town to broadcast over the radio a play-by-play description of a big football game. He gets drunk on the train en route to the game, and doesn't sober up for the remainder of the picture.

The film is the story of the mysterious murder of a half-back as he dashes for a touchdown. Seventy thousand spectators in the jammed stadium see him collapse and die. But not one knows how or by whom the crime was committed.

David Landau, a detective, and Holmes, room-mate of the victim, a role played by Brown, ultimately solve the mystery. Miss Jordan is cast as Holmes' sweetheart.

beauty appear in the "The Half Naked Truth" at the Central Theatre to-day. The girls were selected from a score of applicants by Director Gregory La Cava. They are of uniform height and have displayed splendid grace in their dance routines. "The Half Naked Truth" features them in Broadway musical comedy in which Lee Tracy, as King of Ballyhoo, has placed his client after skyrocketing her to the front page headlines. Lupe Velez is co-featured and Eugene Pallette, Frank Morgan and Shirley Chambers are also cast in this original story by Ben Markson and H. N. Swanson, for which Bartlett Cormack and Corey Ford wrote the adaptation. The film was suggested by "Phantom Fime", a biography of the late Harry Houdini, Broadway's ballyhoo impresario.

"Danger Lights"

Men have pitted their brawn in fight rings—armies have thrown themselves at each other from trenches and battlefields have hurled missiles for miles, but the battle of the new decade, according to spectators was staged recently when two giant locomotives matched their power on steel rails in Montana, U.S.A.

While cameras reeled off hundreds of feet of film and microphones recorded the unusual sounds the huge railroad engines pushed and shoved for some of the most spectacular scenes ever photographed. They are highlights of "Danger Lights" which will be seen at the Oriental Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday.

It was a reverse tug-of-war. One of the largest freight locomotives nosed against the front of a mammoth passenger engine. An Louis Volheim, Robert Armstrong and Jean Arthur, featured players stood by and George B. Seitz, director, shouted for action, the Titan engines thundered and "burned up" the steel rails for supremacy.

MAN'S FATAL LEAP

A CHINESE WHO TRIED TO ESCAPE

Sitting as Coroner at the Central Police Court yesterday afternoon, Mr. Wynne-Jones, assisted by a jury comprising Messrs. A. McKellar (Foreman), A. F. Paul and B.C. Randall, jr., investigated the death of Wong Chung, 35, who was killed when he jumped over a retaining wall, a height of 20 feet, in attempting to escape from custody at Clarence Terrace on June 17 last. Deceased at the time, was under suspicion as to the possession of a pair of black trousers, which he had attempted to pawn. Enquiries were being made at Clarence Terrace.

Addressing the jury, the Coroner said that it was necessary to hold the enquiry because the man was actually in custody and they had to make certain of the actual circumstances of his death.

Dr. Thomas, of the Government Civil Hospital, said there was no bruising or marks externally. A post mortem examination showed that both collar bones, and the first, second and twelfth ribs on the right side were fractured. The man was semi-conscious when brought to the hospital but could not speak nor hear. Death was due to shock and hemorrhage as a result of the injuries.

Detective Constable Tsai On, C.291, who detained the man, said that when accosted deceased said the trousers were his own, then stated he picked them up in the street opposite 14, Clarence Terrace. Enquiries were made at the house, but no loss was reported. On returning and when near house No. 6, deceased suddenly dropped a parcel, fled across the road and jumped over the retaining wall.

He landed on a parapet. While the constable went to the Mortuary to telephone to the Police Station for an ambulance, pedestrians carried the injured man up to the street.

A Banishment?

Replying to the jury, the detective said he did not hold on to the deceased. They walked together. He held out no threats to him and treated him well. He did tell him he was taking him back to the Police Station. Witness did not know he was a banished.

Pun Lin, married woman, who was an eye-witness of the tragedy, gave evidence, as did Kwan Sze, also a married woman, who stated she lost two pairs of trousers, both of which were found in the dead man's possession.

Detective-Sergeant R. Davies, who had charge of the investigations also testified. He said that with the permission of Dr. Dovey he took the finger prints of the deceased in the mortuary.

Inspector Hourihan mentioned that it was alleged by relatives that deceased was a Singapore banished, but there was no record of that.

Without retiring, the jury returned the following verdict:—"Accidental death while attempting to escape from custody." They did not consider the constable was in anyway responsible for his death.

Foreman of the Jury.—We would like to know, sir, whether it is part of a constable's duty to hold on to a man under arrest.

The Coroner, replying, said there were various degrees of arrest. In this case it was merely suspicion. It could not be said that the man was strictly under full legal arrest. The question was more a Police matter than a legal matter. A constable had a right to detain a person, and it was wrong to try to break that detention.

HELP FOR CHINA

LEAGUE HEARS SOONG'S CONSTRUCTIVE PLAN

Geneva, July 3.

The Council of the League of Nations this morning discussed the request of the Chinese Government submitted by Mr. T. V. Soong, for technical collaboration between the Chinese Government and the League with a view to the execution, as soon as possible, of prepared plans for the reconstruction of certain model Chinese provinces.

Supporting the request, Dr. Wellington Koo said the idea was for the appointment of a technical expert to act as liaison officer between the League and the National Economic Council in order to co-ordinate the work of the various experts assisting China.

The Secretary-General, M. Avenol, who attended for the first time in this capacity, suggested the appointment of a small committee to consider the request.

Herr Keller, German member of the Council, supporting the proposal for a committee, said it was desirable, owing to the importance of the questions involved, that the committee perhaps should include representatives of states outside the League.

The President of the Council, the Mexican representative, Senor Najera, said he would consult his colleagues before making a decision regarding the composition of the committee, which he approved in principle.—Reuter.

SERIOUS OUTBREAK OF MALARIA AT SHING MUN

Intensive Campaign Undertaken to Combat Trouble

FLYING ARMADA IN IRELAND

Mishap to General Balbo's Plane

London, July 3.
Slight damage was suffered by General Balbo's plane during the refuelling of the Italian fleet of seaplanes at Londonderry. It is now being repaired.

Lord Londonderry, Secretary for Air, flew from London this afternoon to welcome the Italian airmen who are awaiting favourable weather to start their Atlantic flight.—British Wireless.

SIGNS OF UNREST IN GERMANY

TROUBLE AMONG NAZIS

HITLER ISSUES WARNING

Berlin, July 4.
The feeling is growing that all is not well with the Hitler regime.

There are rumours of discontent within the ranks of the Nazi storm-troops and of rebellious feelings among the populace generally.

Whisperings of a second revolution are being heard.

That the stories abroad are not mere invention would seem to be illustrated by the tenor of a fighting speech by Herr Hitler last night, in the course of a speech to Nazi leaders at Reichen Hall.

Herr Hitler threatened to "suppress ruthlessly, not only all reaction-articles, but those who venture to consider an attempt at a Second Revolution."

REPORT DENIED.

Meanwhile, the Propaganda Ministry, of which Dr. Goebbels has charge, has issued a denial of a report that two hundred insubordinate storm-troops have been confined in a concentration camp near Munich.—Reuter.

FUGITIVE BREAKS A LEG

A regular lumber industry appears to have been started by tree-fellers on Apichau, when they raided an old pine plantation on the island and selected the largest specimens.

In an attempt to discover how forty large trees could have disappeared from the plantation at Pak Sha Wan, forest-rangers happened on a scene of activity on the beach as the remnants of the missing giants were being sawed up, prior to being converted into cheap fuel wood. They arrested two ex-reservoir coolies.

One of them broke his leg while attempting to get away, and was removed to hospital.

In view of the enormity of the offence, a serious view was taken by the Magistrate when dealing with the other captive this morning. Mr. Schofield imposed a fine of $100 and a term of 12 months' hard labour.

A number of other offenders were also dealt with.

FORTY TO SIXTY CASES DAILY

SHANGHAI LABOURERS MOST AFFECTED

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

SOME DISQUIET HAS BEEN PROVOKED AMONG THE ENGINEERS ENGAGED UPON THE SHING MUN DAM SCHEME BY A SERIOUS OUTBREAK OF MALARIA AMONG THE LABOURERS ENGAGED IN THE PREPARATORY WORK.

It is stated that although there are only from seven to eight hundred coolies engaged at Shing Mun at the present time, they have been reporting with malaria at the phenomenal rate of from forty to sixty per day, hampering progress to a some extent, although the work now being undertaken is of no great importance to the main scheme.

The Telegraph's enquiries elicited an interesting fact in connexion with the outbreak. The workmen at Shing Mun are partly Cantonese and partly Shanghai Chinese. The incidence among the Shanghai men has been considerably greater than among the Cantonese, and at the present time, nearly all the patients are Shanghai men.

AN OFFICIAL STATEMENT

The fact is noteworthy since it recalls the experience of the Hongkong Police Force in the employment of Weihaiwei policemen. Although big, strapping fellows and capable policemen, it was found that they were peculiarly liable to contract malaria, while the Cantonese offers a vigorous resistance to the disease.

As far as is known, none of the Europeans engaged at Shing Mun has yet been affected, but every precaution is being taken and efforts are now being made to trace the main breeding-ground of the mosquitoes.

Workmen are now engaged in clearing and draining all paddy fields in the vicinity and Dr. R. B. Jackson, the Government malariaologist, is paying daily visits to the scene to study the needs of the situation.

HOSPITAL GOING UP.

A resident Chinese doctor, a dresser and a malariaologist are stationed at Shing Mun, while a hospital is being built and is nearing completion.

Dr. K. H. Uttley, the Medical Officer in charge New Territories, who has been attending the malaria at Shing Mun, is himself reported to be ill.

SERIOUS PROBLEM.

No effort is being spared to combat the outbreak, with its high incidence of victims, the situation being regarded as serious, not so much from the viewpoint of the needs of the moment, or the next few months, from the viewpoint of the problem which will have to be faced when work on the dam is commenced, with some thousands of coolies engaged, if preventive methods are not soon established.

EARLY DISCOVERY.

Official information is to the effect that the danger of a serious malaria outbreak became apparent almost as soon as labour was drafted to Shing Mun in large numbers.

Since then, there has been an average of from forty to sixty absent every day as the result of the epidemic.

The ground in the area is covered with paddy fields, most of them in disuse, harbouring stagnant water.

The chief work now proceeding at Shing Mun is that of combating the problem. The fields for half a mile round the quarters are being thoroughly cleared and drained, sub-soil drains and a number of special water channels are being constructed. The next step will be the oiling of the entire area, thus preventing the larvae from coming to life.

BLOOD TESTS.

It is anticipated that some months will elapse before the full value of the anti-malarial work is obtained.

Blood-tests carried out have revealed that over fifty per cent. of the labourers on the Shing Mun scheme are now malaria-infected, although it has not been possible to ascertain how many brought dormant malaria with them.

It was officially admitted that certain work has been held up as a result of the outbreak, but the delay occasioned is of no real importance.

AN EXPERT.

Mr. Bach, an engineer with considerable experience of anti-malarial work in Singapore, is engaged in the same task at Shing Mun.

ENGINEERING PROBLEMS.

Meanwhile, there is also a flood of rumours in circulation regarding the engineering problems connected with the construction of the Gorge Dam.

The dam is to be about two hundred feet high and will represent one of the world's outstanding engineering works. Rumour has it that despite hundreds of borings, it has been found impossible to decide upon a satisfactory site, borings to a depth of 150 feet having failed to find conditions which would pass the requirements for a solid foundation.

NO BASIS FOR RUMOURS.

We understand there is no basis for these rumours, though the difficulties are acknowledged. It is believed that the British contracting firm which is responsible for the carrying out of the work is now deciding which of two sites for the dam is the most satisfactory.

When a decision has been made, the construction will be commenced, special provisions being made to meet the peculiar conditions.

M. Litvinoff, the Soviet Commissioner for Foreign Affairs, who has been finding much work in London outside that of the World Economic Conference.

DEFINITION OF AGGRESSOR

SOVIET PACT WITH 7 STATES

NO EXCUSES

London, July 3.
M. Litvinoff's visit to London has been productive of a further important diplomatic success, the conclusion of a non-aggression pact between the Soviet and seven other countries.

The pact was signed to-day by M. Litvinoff and the representatives of Afghanistan, Estonia, Latvia, Persia, Poland and Turkey. It consists of five Articles and one annexe.

AGGRESSOR DEFINED.

The Treaty defines an aggressor as

- (1) the State which is the first to declare war;
- (2) the State which invades the territory of the other without a declaration of war;
- (3) the State which attacks with land, sea or air forces the troops, ships and aircraft of the other State;
- (4) the State which blockades the coasts and ports of the other State;
- (5) the State which supports armed bands in its territory which invade another State and refuses on the request of the invaded State to take the proper steps in its territory to suppress the bands.

NO EXCUSES.

The Annexe stipulates that no consideration of any kind shall serve as a pretext or a justification for aggression.

M. Litvinoff, in a statement which was issued simultaneously with the text of the Non-Aggression Pact, explains that the present definition of aggressions is that which was submitted to Geneva but which was found inconvenient and embarrassing to certain States.

The Soviet Government therefore felt it desirable to embody the definition of aggression in a Convention with a limited number of States.

LINK IN CHAIN.

M. Litvinoff says that the Convention constitutes a new link in the chain of Soviet measures systematically to reinforce peaceful relations with its neighbours. The Soviet is ready to sign a similar Convention with all other nations.—Reuter.

FAIR GENERALLY

The Royal Observatory reports that pressure is highest over the Pacific to the North-east of Japan and relatively low over China generally. A depression is in the process of formation over the South-east of Japan.

RUHR PIT EXPLOSION

COAL-WASHING DISASTER

EIGHT KILLED AND MANY HURT

Berlin, July 4.
A serious explosion occurred yesterday in the coal-washing works attached to the Blumenthal Pit, near Recklinghaus.

In the first blast, eight of the workmen were killed and a larger number seriously injured.

The explosion was followed by a fire which destroyed the machinery and part of the building.

Fire fighting Equipment was brought from several parts of the Ruhr region to cope with the outbreak, which was soon got under control. The most serious damage was the result of the explosion.—Reuter.

FATAL DIVE BY YOUTH

DROWNING MISHAP AT LAICHUKOK

THOUGHT TO HAVE STRUCK BOTTOM

A drowning fatality occurred at the Laichukok bathing beach yesterday, the victim being Cho Mansang, a young student.

The deceased who used the Chin Mo Athletic Association's shed on the beach, was seen to dive from a height of ten feet. When he did not reappear, it was feared that he had injured himself by having struck the harbour bed, as there was only five feet of water hereabouts at the time.

The Police were informed and assisted by the other bathers, they recovered the body of the unfortunate youth.

THREE NEW BRIDGES OVER THAMES

Opened by the Prince of Wales

London, July 3.
Three new bridges over the Upper Thames at Chiswick, Twickenham and Hampton Court were opened to-day by the Prince of Wales.

The Bridges have been constructed to meet the requirements of increased traffic due to road developments and the construction of new bypass roads in the western outskirts of London.

Thousands of people witnessed the ceremonies and the Prince was accorded an enthusiastic reception.—British Wireless.

BALANCED BUDGETS

PORTUGAL'S HAPPY POSITION

Lisbon, July 3.
Portugal and her Colonies have all achieved budgets which are either balanced or showing substantial surpluses for the coming year according to statistics just revealed.

The Portuguese Budget shows a surplus of 2,000,000 escudos, whilst both Macao and Timor have budgets which balance.—Reuter.

DEATH ON P. & O. NALDERA

London Accountant Buried at Sea

Gibraltar, July 4.
On the arrival of the P. and O. liner Naldera from the Far East, the captain reported that Alban Frank Mathews, a London accountant, had been found dead in his first-class cabin and was buried at sea.—Reuter.

ROOSEVELT POLICY

ACCLAIMED BY MR. KEYNES

MAGNIFICENTLY RIGHT

London, July 4.
Speculations regarding the outcome of to-day's meeting of the Bureau of the World Economic Conference form the chief topics of the morning papers.

While President Roosevelt has not had a good press in London, denunciations of his attitude are by no means unanimous.

The Daily Herald, on the contrary, hails it as "the first definite pronouncement by the head of a great country in favour of a currency adapted not to change exigencies of the supply and distribution of a certain metal, but to the economic needs of the nation."

MAGNIFICENTLY RIGHT.

The well-known economist, Mr. J. Maynard Keynes, in an article in the Daily Mail declares that President Roosevelt is "magnificently right" and he challenges Britain to decide whether to tread the old unfortunate ways, or to explore the new paths leading to a managed currency.

Britain has an opportunity to consolidate the sterling-dollar bloc, comprising virtually the whole world outside Western Europe.

GOLD ULTIMATUM.

On the other hand, it is reported that the gold countries are likely to demand the stabilisation of the pound as a condition of the continuance of the Conference, failing which the Conference will be adjourned after reaching the largest measure of agreement possible and appointing a committee to prepare the basis of the resumption of the conference when currency stabilisation becomes possible.—Reuter.

CINEMA ROOF COLLAPSE

ELEVEN INJURED IN CANTON

Canton, July 4.
Part of the roof of the Wah Man Theatre, in South Chung Wah Road, collapsed on Sunday evening when a popular picture was being exhibited.

Eleven persons were injured. The accident is attributed to faulty workmanship and the heavy rains of the past two or three days.

FENG'S FUTURE

Peking, July 4.
Negotiations between Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang and the Peking Military Council are said to have definitely broken down.

While he agrees to Soong Chih-yuan's return to Charhar to take over the provincial government, Feng Yu-hsiang insists that his anti-Japanese army at Kalgan must not be abolished as demanded by the Nanking Government. Although no official announcement has been made, it is stated that the Nanking Government is mobilising the 3rd and 5th National Divisions for Shanghai at present.

SOVIET STEAMER SEIZED

JAPANESE CHARGES OF SPYING

ANOTHER CAUSE OF FRICTION

Tokyo, July 4.
Another incident has occurred to provide source of dispute between Japan and the Soviet.

Two Soviet vessels, one a steamer of four thousand tons, have been seized and a number of Russians have been taken into custody.

Allegations of spying have been laid against the Russians involved. The story is related in a message from Otaru, which says that following reports that Soviet subjects were spying in the Kuriles, a party of armed Japanese police seized a 4,000-ton Soviet steamer and a 100-ton Soviet fishing-boat off Makkanro, an uninhabited island south-west of Paramushiro.

"SUSPICIOUS ACTIONS"

They arrested thirty Russians and announced their intention of taking the seized vessels and the arrested men to Nemuro. The Russians claim they were merely supplying water and provisions to the Soviet crab-canning ship which stranded off Makkanro late in May, but the Japanese assert their actions were most suspicious and tantamount to spying and invading Japanese territorial waters.—Reuter.

BRITAIN AND THE SOVIET

LENA GOLDFIELDS ISSUE

London, July 3.
The Metropolitan Vickers engineers released from prison, let Moscow last night and to-day crossed the Russian frontier into Poland at Stolpe.

Captain Anthony Eden, in the House of Commons said the purpose for which the embargo was imposed had thus been attained. Arrangements would shortly be made to resume trade negotiations at the point where they were interrupted.

In these circumstances he could not at present give assurance as to the manner in which the claim of the Lena Goldfields Limited would be dealt with. Similar consideration applied in the case of the clause inspecting private property confiscated from British subjects.—British Wireless.

FOREIGNERS IN DANGER?

QUESTIONS IN HOUSE OF COMMONS

London, July 3.
The activities of General Li Chuan in the North China news area, were the subject of questions in the House of Commons to-day. Captain Anthony Eden said understood steps were being taken to regularise the position arising from General Li's occupation of a short stretch of the railway between Tangshan and Lutai.

Captain Eden said he was aware that foreigners in that area as well as in Peking, China, were endangered, and therefore special measures for protection had been taken.—Reuter.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

For Fashionable Afternoons

Patou Achieves Wide-Shouldered Effect With Tricks of Contrast

Restrained, new ways of achieving the modish shoulder width, give individual distinction to new semi-formal afternoon things. (Left) Black and white marocain are combined in new manner with white sleeves capped by the black shoulders. A string motif and hat decoration add interest. (Right) Brown and beige-dotted crepe faconne has bouffant sleeves which give the required shoulders, in novel manner, and an asymmetrical cut to the body of the gown lends distinction. The brown straw hat is trimmed with beige grosgrain.

By Jean Patou

Pairs—Any style worthy of interest is one which must leave its imprint on all the categories of clothes which together constitute what is known as the mode.

When a new fashion is perfectly understood, and the predominating feature has the necessary qualities to inspire a definite trend, then can you trace its principles in every type of dress, where they are more or less apparent.

In any event, whatever guise these principles may affect, they must never be used in too emphatic or too sudden a manner. Rather must their influence be divined in the guise of fantasies which soften the general effect.

Fantasy, With Discretion

There is no other type of dress to compare with the semi-formal afternoon gown where the couturier finds himself right on the limits of fantasy and where there are so many occasions of exaggerating, especially where a new style is concerned.

This is easily understood if you remember that because of the note of distinction women expect to find in models of this category, at the same time they also have to show a certain discretion. Monotony here is more or less attenuated according to the degree of fantasy applied.

The chief characteristic of the semi-formal afternoon dress is indeed a definite note of elegance which cannot be separated from certain principles of cut and trimming. I will take two concrete examples in my present collection to illustrate my meaning.

Contrast Hints Fullness

In the first model, a black and white combination, there is a decided effect of fullness at the top of the silhouette, a characteristic of the season. Here you will see that this movement can be translated in another way than by volume and that this impression can be conveyed by the introduction of a contrasting colour.

This is a means which has the added advantage of making the silhouette appear considerably narrower at the waist and hipline without extra bulk at the top.

Balance Must be Preserved

The same effect can be seen in a more sober and simple dress of dotted crepe faconne. Here the sleeves show the fashionable fullness but within the limits required of a relatively simple gown. The note of fantasy is supplied by the asymmetrical effects of cut and the play of dark and light backgrounds.

Asymmetry is always permissible and is certain of producing attractive results provided always it carries with it a perfectly balanced compensation in the basic structure of the gown.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

Hair-Line Eyebrows
Out of Favour

By Alicia Hart

Don't pluck your eyebrows to a skinny line this summer. Having them more natural looking is in vogue again. But if your eyebrows are bushy, for pity's sake pluck them in the right places until they take on a well-groomed look.

A woman who had a reputation for being somewhat of a shrew had her eyebrows "done" this winter. Formerly they grew almost together. The beautician cleared away every trace of an eyebrow for a space each side of the natural separation over the nose. Then they were plucked from the bottom until they seemed much higher than formerly.

The result gave her a pleasant calm look through the brow. And the slenderer, higher brows accentuated her eyes in a most alluring way. This simple act did more to make-over that particular woman than one would have dreamed.

And, looking nicer actually made her sweeter tempered and more appealing.

Too pale eyebrows and lashes detract from expression. They give a negative quality that no up-and-coming lady wants. Touch them up with just a little pencil or colour, and give character to your whole face.

Above all, brush your eyebrows. Clean out all the powder that gets into them when you make-up. Then shape them by pushing them up with the side of your little brush, then rounding off the top line with the other side of your brush.

You Cannot Have Better Proof Than This.

"I would not have believed the results possible had I not made the actual blood examinations myself."

Report of medical practitioner on

WORLD-FAMOUS BLOOD AND NERVE TONIC.

Although for fifty years this formula has been the accepted specific for anaemia (blood impoverishment) any new test by the medical profession has its value. The latest tests of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were made on the Group System. A qualified practicing physician selected twelve patients eleven of whom were known to be suffering in varying degrees from blood impoverishment. In each case preliminary blood examinations were made including the twelfth case which was a normal one. After four weeks' treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills blood tests were again taken.

The examinations were all taken in accordance with accepted modern medical practice, percentage of haemoglobin content and blood count taken.

Out of the twelve cases ten showed an astonishing improvement in the condition of the blood. The normal case remained unchanged. The other case where no improvement was noted was discovered to have some dead teeth which were poisoning the bloodstream.

In the course of his report the doctor conducting the tests stated: "I would not have believed the results possible had I not made the actual blood examinations myself." These tests amply prove that

VILLAGE TRAGEDY.

YOUNG GIRL LEAPS INTO NULLAH

About three weeks ago, Chan Yung-tai, 16-year-old daughter of a farmer in the Sheungshui district of the New Territories, disappeared from her home without leaving any explanation that could be accepted as satisfactory. Inquiries by interested neighbours elicited evasive replies from the girl's mother, and finally the Police of the local district station became suspicious.

During the week-end the mystery was cleared up in a tragic and startling manner, when as the result of a search, the Police came upon a newly dug grave on the hillside and exhumed the remains of the missing girl.

The discovery was followed almost immediately by the arrest of the girl's mother on the capital charge, but a statement was soon forthcoming from her which has cast a different light on the case.

The woman declares that the girl was suffering from a violent form of insanity during which the gravest fears were felt for her safety. These fears proved to be only too well founded, when after being absent from her home one night, a search the following morning led to her being traced to a nullah.

Here her body was found in the waters of the nullah into which it was evident she had thrown herself.

Frightened lest she should be held responsible for her daughter's death, the woman confessed that she buried her secretly without informing anybody else of her intentions.

The woman's illusion to her daughter's abnormal mental condition was supported by the statements of neighbours, and she has since been released.

CAN BREAKDOWN OF CONFERENCE BE AVERTED?

added, if the Conference, in advance of any serious effort to consider the problems for which it was called, were to allow itself to be diverted by proposals of a purely artificial and temporary nature, comprising an experiment to affect the monetary exchange of a few nations only.

Mr. Hull declared he did not rollish the thought that insistence on such a course of action should be made the excuse for the continuance of the basic economic errors underlying much of the world-wide depression.

The American spokesman described the attempt to achieve what would be a temporary and probably artificial stability of foreign exchange on the part of a few countries only, as a specious fallacy.

INTERNAL CONDITIONS.

The sound internal economic system of a nation was a greater factor in its well-being than the price of its currency, in the changing terms of currencies of other nations, declared Mr. Hull. That was why reduced cost of Government, an adequate Government income and ability to meet Government debts, were all so important to the ultimate stability of any country.

"Let me be frank and say that the United States seeks the kind of dollar which, a generation hence, will have the same purchasing and debt-paying power as the dollar value we hope to obtain in the near future," Mr. Hull asserted.

The United States' broad purpose, Mr. Hull pointed out, was a permanent stabilisation of the currencies of all the nations.

Gold, or gold and silver, may well continue to be the metallic reserve behind a currency; but this, he added, was not the time to dissipate gold reserves.

"When a majority of the nations have produced balanced budgets and are living within their means, we could properly discuss a better distribution of the world's gold and silver supplies as national currency reserves," Mr. Hull insisted.

He concluded by affirming that mitigation of existing trade embargoes would offer a sounder course towards restoration of world commerce than the temporary fixing of exchange.

AT THE CROSSROADS.

President Roosevelt's decisive "NO" to "gold nations" hopes, brought the Conference to a crossroad of real progress or failure. A meeting of Central Banks which this morning heard Mr. Hull's statement, rose at 12.15 p.m. and its members were generally convinced that no further reason exists for prolongation of the Conference. The gold nations now more openly are canvassing for adjournment, while the British delegation is making an effort at conciliation.

A suggestion that a resolution for adjournment may be placed before the Bureau to-day or tomorrow as yet has found neither confirmation nor denial, though the feeling of the gold nations seems summed up in the words of one of the gold country delegates: "I am afraid this means the end of the Conference."

President Roosevelt's latest pronouncement having definitely removed the hope of American help on the stabilisation issue, it is felt the next move lies with Britain. Events are likely to move very rapidly and a definite lead from Britain is confidently expected, possibly within the next few hours.

It is noteworthy in this connection that, prior to the gold nations' meeting, a conference of the British and dominion delegates was called to consider a joint policy.

GOLD NATIONS' REPLY

A declaration by the gold countries, to be issued following Mr. Hull's statement, is now awaiting the signature of Signor Jung of Italy and is most brief and to the point. It consists of two paragraphs, the first affirming that the gold nations will now act independently of Britain and the United States, and proceed upon a common policy conducted by their Central Banks; the second describing the machinery whereby the gold countries will co-operate.

American circles are amazed at President Roosevelt's statement, which they interpret as extremely nationalistic and isolationist, some Americans even criticising it on the ground that it becomes the United States to lecture other countries on balanced budgets when the United States budget itself is in a state of chronic deficit.

It is understood that President Roosevelt rejected the American policy in a statement drawn up by

BRITISH DEMAND

URGE SETTLEMENT OF RAILWAY DISRUPTION

London, July 3.

In reply to a question in the House of Commons to-day, Captain Eden said he had no information of the alleged coal shortage in Shanghai, caused by the interruption of railway traffic between Tientsin and Shanhaikuan, but in view of the inconvenience and harm to British interests caused by the interference with railway services, the British Charge d'Affaires at Tokyo had been instructed to represent informally to the Japanese Government the importance of an early resumption of railway traffic.

He added, that according to information received, a certain number of trains are now running daily from the mines.—Reuter.

Luantung Pact

Peking, July 3.

It is reported in reliable Chinese circles that an agreement has been reached between the Chinese and Japanese authorities whereby the Japanese agree to withdraw the Manchukuo irregulars under the command of General Li Chi-chun, some distance from the Peking-Mukden Railway. Only unarmed Chinese guards will be allowed to travel on the trains when the railway service to Shanhaikuan is resumed.

Both the Chinese and foreign communities are watching the developments in the situation with interest. The foreigners want their summer holidays, while the Legations and their guards want to make their usual summer transfer to Peking.

The Chinese authorities are anxious for the rehabilitation of the recent war area.—Reuter.

"YOU ARE FREE"

STORY OF RELEASE OF ENGLISHMEN

Moscow, July 3.

MacDonald and Thornton, the two British engineers who were released from a Soviet prison during the week-end, will leave Moscow to-night for England via Berlin.

The first intimation the prisoners had that they were to be released was when the assistant police chief entered their room at 11 p.m. and told them, "Pack your kits."

The prisoners were then escorted to the courtyard where the prison commander, representatives of the OGPU, and the British Charge d'Affaires (Mr. Strang) awaited them.

At a table, under a tree, the prison commander read the decree of the Central Executive Committee, freeing them.

"Gentlemen, you are free," he said, smiling.

General handshaking followed and the released men motored to the British Embassy where they were given a sumptuous meal.

Both refused to talk about the trial but said they had been treated courteously in prison. They did no work but had plenty of exercise. Most of their time was spent in reading books. They received letters 10 days old.

Thornton and MacDonald will be met in Berlin by Mrs. Thornton, Mr. Allan Monkhouse (who also figured in the trial) and Mr. Cox, an official of Metropolitan-Vickers Company.—Reuter.

SHANGHAI ROBBERY.

JEWELLERY STOLEN FROM BIG STORE

Shanghai, July 3.

A sensational jewellery store robbery in Nanking Road occurred during the week-end at the premises of the Siberian Jewellery Store.

Working from the stairway at the back of the premises, the thieves chiselled their way through a concrete wall to the back of a large safe.

Using acetylene blow-lamps they removed the back of the safe, gaining an entrance and making a haul of diamonds, gold and platinum goods, valued in the neighbourhood of $100,000. The thieves made a clean getaway.—Our Own Correspondent.

Mr. Hull and Professor Moley last night and cabled the substitute to Mr. Hull this morning.

VOTE TO ADJOURN.

As a sequel to Mr. Hull's declaration, the sub-committee on Commercial Policy decided to adjourn on July 6, on a resolution moved by the Swiss delegate and supported by the French and Italian delegates.

Other committees are likely to follow suit.—Reuter.

SOVIET APOLOGY

REPLY TO JAPAN'S SHARP PROTEST

Moscow, July 3.

M. Sokolnikoff, acting Foreign Commissar, to-day informed Mr. Ota, the Japanese Ambassador here, that the charge that three Japanese fishermen had been shot and killed on the shore at Kamchatka on June 15, had been found to be true. M. Sokolnikoff tendered an apology on behalf of the Soviet Government, which Mr. Ota at once conveyed to Tokyo.

Mr. Sokolnikoff gave the Japanese Ambassador his Government's assurance that steps were being taken to punish the Soviet citizens responsible for this crime.

The apology, it is expected, will considerably relieve the tension that has existed in Japanese political circles since the murder was first reported.

On July 1, a report from Tokyo stated that the Selyukal, largest political party in Japan, had demanded that the Japanese Government make the strongest sort of representation to Moscow over the Kamchatka shooting.

Landing Provented.

A Japanese official who was sent to investigate at the scene of the outrage, and who was promised all co-operation on the part of the Soviet authorities, was prevented from landing by the OGPU. He had wished to make inquiries in the village near which the fishermen were slain.

It was while they were ashore securing a supply of fresh water for their ship that the men were shot. Their companions were compelled to leave them lying on the beach because of the hot fire directed against them from the village.

Later a party of Japanese blue-jackets landed and found the bullet-riddled bodies.—Reuter.

NEW MENACE ON CHINA COAST?

The history of piracy on the China Coast contains few episodes so revolting as the story of the seizure of the Sheng An and the dastardly cold-blooded destruction of life which accompanied the shocking affair. Three of the victims were slain in their sleep; none was given a word of warning or a vestige of mercy; one of the victims was a woman. Such was the barbarity exhibited that, but for the known facts and the grim confessions, it would be almost unbelievable that Europeans could be guilty. The type of individual capable of such outrages against all human decency usually confine themselves to their natural haunts, the under-worlds of Chicago, Marseilles and such places—they usually herd among their own kind. The appearance of a gang of desperadoes indulging in wholesale murder without provocation or excuse upon the China coast is profoundly disquieting even while the "adventure" has come to a sensational end in the arrest of all responsible. It has long been recognised that an enterprise which a group of twenty or so Chinese coolies periodically carries to a successful conclusion, could be efficiently tackled by a mere handful of desperate Europeans. The Sheng An piracy may bring retribution upon the heads of the perpetrators, but the start they have made, brought to disaster merely by accident, might easily encourage further experiment. The menace is probably more apparent than real, although, against that, who would have believed the Sheng An piracy to be possible, except in fiction, until it actually occurred? There is the admission that plans for the outrage had been developing since last year to provide food for thought. And if further citation were needed, five foreigners boarded the Tientsin Maru at Tangku on Saturday morning in circumstances which aroused grave suspicion—before anything was known of the fatal affair on the Sheng An. The facts are disturbing to say the least.

NOTES OF THE DAY

Settlement of the trade war between Britain and Soviet Russia is the most sensible act of both governments for some time past and congratulations are due to Sir John Simon and M. Litvinoff. The happy outcome of their conversations could not have been easy of achievement. The chief obstacle to success was national dignity, which frequently leads otherwise reasonable people along paths from which they instinctively shy. In this case, the trade boycotts had gone on long enough for both governments to realise the futility of the procedure, to discover that embargoes never did anybody any good. Once Russia saw her way clear to release Messrs. MacDonald and Thornton, therefore, the war was abandoned with feelings of relief on both sides. If the episode has caused Britain and Russia to look at a mutual problem from the other's point of view for a brief while, it may yet prove to have served a useful purpose.

Canton-Hankow Railway.

Although a good deal of nonsense has been written about the plans for completing the Canton-Hankow Railway, it is safe to say that when through traffic to Hankow has been established, a filip to Hongkong trade will result. Modern developments in the realm of transport have destroyed the attractiveness of the original dream of a through route from Kowloon to Calcutta, but in opening up the hinterland of China and providing a short route to Hankow and the Upper Yangtze, the project is decidedly worth while. A substantial saving in time and costs will be afforded the Hankow importer and exporter who makes Hongkong his main supply depot and he will not be slow to grasp the advantages.

Supporting Press Freedom.

Newspapermen are certain to be interested in the new law put into effect in New Jersey recently, under which no court, grand jury or other body could require any reporter to divulge the source of confidential information used in news articles. This law simply recognises what has long been the code of the profession; that a reporter is in honour bound to protect the person from whom he gets information of legitimate interest to the public. Courts and juries have frequently tried to compel reporters to reveal their sources, and in most instances they have failed. All too often they have made the attempt simply because the reporter has made public something that certain highly-placed persons wanted concealed, and the action has been an effort to get the reporter into trouble such laws provide fresh bulwarks for the freedom of the press.

Another Blow To "Prestige."

The last of the English players made their exit from the Men's Singles championship at Wimbledon yesterday, leaving overseas competitors in complete control. The Englishman is reputed for the carefree, nonchalant manner in which he takes his sport, and "maskee" is usually the popular reaction to reverses such as have been sustained at Wimbledon. Which is perhaps, just as well. Nevertheless, newspaper sports writers, in their endeavour to arouse the Englishman to a more serious and painstaking study of his sport, have made England prestige-conscious. The elimination of Austin, Perry and Hughes before the semi-finals is another blow to our "ability-to-win" prestige, although happily our good name as sportsman remains unimpaired. This is a far more important consideration.

Repeal in Finland.

One of the promises made in the campaign to rid Finland of prohibition was that repeal would do away with the dry law smuggling had proved troublesome. Wets claimed that with an easy access to liquor all this would end. Now that the dry law is no more in Finland, it is possible to check promises with results. It was recently reported that rumrunners have been particularly active lately in the Baltic. Smugglers, who have found safe hiding places among the many small islands in the Baltic, have repeatedly defied gunboats and coast guard cutters. One rumrunner, on being challenged by coast guard officials, showed a gun. The Finnish Government is so concerned about the increase in smuggling that, because one of the liquor ships is described as a "British rumrunner," Finnish authorities are anxious to confer with the British Government on the matter. The case of Finland is illuminating. It shows clearly that the promise of repeal militant was an uncertain index to the performance of repeal.

P. C. SELIM MAHMOUD VINDICATED

A TALE OF HONGKONG COURTS

By C. V.-L. for the Telegraph

P. C. D1001 Selim Mahmoud of the Central Division was sad in an exquisite way. Being sad, it follows also that he was listless. With a mind completely detached, he mechanically entered Kail Kai (here translated as Curry Street) without realising his progress. The unlicensed hawkers, who had taken possession of the pitch, started up on his approach, but half-way down the street they stopped to stare back in wonderment at this indifferent, transformed mole chui. On other mornings he had given them quite a run, but to-day he did not as much as look in their direction. It was true that for one brief moment he did emit a spark of ill-temper. More from force of routine than any special interest, he paused before a basket abandoned by a fleeing hawker, and after first gazing all unseeingly at it, had suddenly and viciously lunged out with his foot.

But even this performance could not hold his interest for long. After a last violent kick which sent the offending article tottering over on its side, he continued on his way, with a return of his former air of listless indifference.

Plainly something was decidedly abnormal with P. C. Selim Mahmoud, who is known to be ordinarily a most cheerful member of his contingent. If the truth be told, he was thoroughly disappointed and in that condition of mind summed up in the word "fed-up." Only that morning the sahib on the Bench at Central saw fit to throw out his case (his third within a week) because, he was informed, it was trivial and lacked essential evidence.

These minute points of law always worried P. C. Selim Mahmoud, who never could see the necessity. He argues that if a person carries a basket of vegetables in the street he is a hawker. If he hands the vegetables to another person he is selling them. And if he sells them without holding a hawker's licence, the import becomes clear: he has committed a distinct breach of the Hawkers' Ordinance.

Right at the outset of his career our policeman had been initiated to the mysteries of that Ordinance, and its application in an elementary form to an everyday experience on his beat has for him the same facility as returning a fish to the water that is its natural element.

Despite the care with which he has been drilled, P. C. Selim Mahmoud still retains firmly planted notions of his own—that are difficult to shift. Consequently, he was plainly distressed when informed that it was not sufficient to say "I saw a sale." The handing over of the goods to the buyer, the passing of the payment sum, and the accompanying words—in short, the various progressive acts legally constituting the transaction which only could be accepted as evidence, had not impressed him with their necessity. Laboriously poring over the entry in his note-book, he was disappointed when, half-way, the sahib on the Bench stopped the case.

Pondering over the proceedings afterwards, his bewilderment grew. Only the other day his case book had come under suspicion because it was a complete blank. Viewed against the fact that his beat during that month was laid through a district notoriously over-run with unlicensed hawkers, it was hinted that he had been wilfully negligent.

On previous occasions he was able to take refuge behind the plea that the Inspector sahib threw out the few cases he had brought in. On this occasion he was unable to again advance that defence.

He came away from the dreaded interview with the Police Chief with a feeling of having been severely reprimanded.

He thought it was just too bad: His mind went back to what an Inspector sahib, that very morning, had declared in the Court. The Inspector had told the sahib on the Bench that "these Indian constables are not capable of doing anything except catching hawkers."

Of course he had had nothing to do with it—particularly. The case in point belonged to another man, a comrade, but the generality of the criticism made him resentful.

The Magistrate had also chided the colleague for "catching women and children," although he (Selim Mahmoud) knew they sometimes gave more trouble than anyone else. "Catch one of your size," the sahib had also said to the colleague, and it left Selim Mahmoud, always anxious to learn, floundering helplessly about for an explanation.

Did the sahib intend they were to catch only men? And here P. C. Selim Mahmoud stopped suddenly on his tracks, and frowned contemptuously at a mean-looking street coolie, the while he puzzled over the next requirement. "Of his size?"

He himself measures 6 feet 7 inches in his policeman's No. 11 shoes, and it will be difficult to find amongst these cheena one of his bulkiness to catch. Surely the sahib had been good enough to make a joke about it. He could not have been serious.

If the stricture were literally carried out, and inch for inch, and pound for pound were required, he came to the conclusion that, short of weighing these hawkers with their own scales before arresting them (which would be putting the cart before the horse) the only individual he was permitted, logically, to arrest would be P. C. Selim Mahmoud—HIMSELF.

He would, in that event, have a. to chase himself, b. to take a running jump at himself.

From P. C. Selim Mahmoud's standpoint, therefore, he is to be readily consoled with. He feels that he has been grievously misunderstood and unappreciated. With a little further training, he was convinced he could qualify for a brainy job in the C. I. D., but he agreed that as a detective tracking the desperate criminal to his lair, he would be as conspicuous while on the trail as a South Sea Islander flaunting a grass skirt.

This patrolling of the streets as a necessary part of the policing of a city is all very well and useful by itself. Still it suggested that by keeping him down to it, the people higher up were thinking he was not

The Very Idea!

INSPIRATION.

By Eddie "Perspiration" Kelly.
HAVE you ever sat back in a comfortable chair, waiting for an inspiration—waiting, gently backwards and forwards, soothing your depression with the fumes of a bag, feet on the tables, and cuspidor close handy?

NO? Well, that's how we were to-day, when a boy came timidly into our sanctum, bearing the Telegraph on a silver salver.

"With the Editor's compliments," he said in an awed voice, and after saluting in approved fashion, silently withdrew.

We glanced casually through the paper, casting an approving eye here and there, and making special note of the excellence of the last column on page six.

We looked through the Court reports, wondering absently whether someone had usurped our authority and had gone crying to Mr.

Wynne Jones. We dislike people who cry. Pete cries after he's had a few whiskies. Therefore we dislike Pete.

But stop. What is this we see? A man put his head through a windscreen and broke his arm.

We suspect the Telegraph is hiding something. We suspect that his fellow experienced just the same sort of thing that happened to us a few weeks ago. Pete was driving us home in his car after a party with a few of the boys. Somehow, we must have dropped off to sleep. When we woke up, there was a fellow looking straight at us, with a nasty leer on his face. We promptly hit him—and put our hand through the windscreen. Pete hit us on the head with a cranking handle.

Don't you see what's happened? Just another case of history repeating itself—but the Telegraph wouldn't say so.

Anyway, it's not so very disgraceful, even if the Telegraph was right. Many a man has done worse than put his head through a windscreen and break his arm. We don't know what your home is like, but we have often put our foot in the soup, and had a sore head for days.

Then, you must have heard of the Chinese general who had a hand in some graft and lost his head.

And how many of Hongkong's Bright Young Things have lost their heads over their naval officer and broken their hearts.

We could go on like this for columns and columns. But what's the use? We're searching for inspiration.

THE CHOICE.

It won't be an easy decision. But it is hard to see how we can avoid making it, one way or the other. We are rapidly approaching a great fork in the road and there is no middle course. Before long we must make one of the most important choices in our history.

Yes, we are wondering whether we shall pay the wine-merchant or the rent.

A BETTER WORLD.

In spite of all our troubles, we have a great deal to be thankful for. By keeping that in mind, we can help to advance the dream which, has hovered over our horizon for a quarter of a century, the dream that it is possible to make the world better, a new life possible for the average man, the dream that that freedom and contentment and happiness could be made an everyday reality.

Yes, the dream that the muzzling order had been extended to headaches.

Strange thing, our headache when she reads the column always enquires why we don't take an Aspirin instead of boring our Admirals and Extending Public with our creature ills.

But we've never sunk to the low level of calling her a creature yet.

CAR MODES.

This Tiger Car man has challenged our self-respect, and the little Vanity too permit ourselves, Matilda's a very nice car or at least so we thought. Now she looks shabby and, de mode, apes vous and so are you, so to speak. We are no longer happy.

If next week, you see an outsize blonter tearing down the street, gleaming shilly from codfish eyes, that'll be us, or rather, Matilda with us playing the part of Jonah. There will be one marked difference between Matilda and the average blonter, however. The gills will be inside. At least, that's what we're steering for.

"We didn't want to travel this year, but simply couldn't afford to keep our home open."

American Delegates Themselves Surprised By Strong Roosevelt Statement

ACCUSATIONS OF INCONSISTENCY

PITTMAN RESOLUTION JEOPARDISED

LONDON, JULY 4.

WHILE THEY ADMIT ASTONISHMENT AT THE VIGOUR OF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S REJECTION OF ALL EFFORTS TOWARDS CONTROL OF CURRENCY FLUCTUATIONS, THE AMERICAN DELEGATION HAS DECIDED TO OPPOSE ANY MOVEMENT TO ADJOURN THE WORLD ECONOMIC CONFERENCE AT PRESENT.

The Americans are divided on the question of the withdrawal of the Pittman resolution which is viewed as conflicting with President Roosevelt's statement, which has occasioned considerable surprise among all the members of the delegation.

GOLD BLOC MAKE DECLARATION

The Pittman resolution suggests that gold should be re-established as the international measure of exchange values.

The use of gold should be confined to cover for the circulation of paper currency and as a medium for settling international balances payment.

SILVER CONFIDENCE.

The resolution adds that in view of the necessity for restoring the confidence of the East in its purchasing medium, silver, which can only be done if the price of silver is restored to equilibrium with commodity price levels, steps should be taken to rehabilitate silver.

It is suggested with this object, inter alia, that an agreement be sought between the chief silver producing and silver-using countries to limit arbitrary sales upon the world market.

Senator Pittman, in introducing the resolution, declared it to be the first international recognition of silver since 1873.

Meanwhile, important conferences are going on between the delegations of the gold countries.

LITTLE TO BE DONE.

In the face of President Roosevelt's statement, the European gold bloc feel, very strongly, that there is not a great deal that their representatives can do at the conference.

At the same time, it is stated that it is possible that the economic experts might be asked to continue the discussions. A full and frank discussion is anticipated at the meeting of the Bureau of the Conference to be held to-day.

AMERICAN INCONSISTENCY.

It is stated that there is every possibility that the apparent inconsistency of President Roosevelt's statement with the fact that the Preparatory Commission put currency questions well in the forefront, will be raised.

M. Bonnet, the French Finance Minister, returned to London at midnight and immediately drove to the French delegation's hotel.

TURKEY'S POSITION.

French press reports to the effect that the Turkish Finance Minister had recently, in the course of a Budget debate in the National Assembly, intimated the possibility of devaluation of the Turkish pound are vigorously denied by the semi-official Turkish news agency, which stresses that the Minister had, on the contrary, in the course of the debate, taken a decided stand against a Deputy who had spoken of a possible devaluation in the Turkish currency.

BRITAIN'S POSITION.

President Roosevelt's rejection of the proposals for temporary stabilisation was before a meeting this morning of some of the leading British Dominions delegates with the British Prime Minister and this evening the United Kingdom delegation met at the House of Commons to consider the situation which has arisen.

After a conversation between the delegates of the European countries whose currencies are based on gold the following statement was issued:

GOLD BLOC STATEMENT.

The undersigned Governments, convinced that the maintenance of the economic and financial recovery of the world and of credit and for the safeguarding of social progress in their respective countries, confirm their intent to maintain the free functioning of the gold standard in their respective countries at the existing gold parities and within the framework of the existing monetary laws.

"They ask their central banks to keep in close touch to give the maximum efficacy to this declaration."

The declaration is signed by the delegates of Italy, France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Poland and Switzerland.

DOLLAR QUOTATION.

There was a sharp break in the sterling-dollar quotations this morning. They slumped to 4.48½ but recovered later to 4.43½. In the Stock Markets, after a quiet

HULL STATEMENT.

Tremendous engerness was displayed to-day in obtaining the first issues of Mr. Cordell Hull's promised statement of America's attitude on measures of remedy for the world's currency problems. At the outset, Mr. Hull made it clear that in issuing the declaration he acted in his capacity as Secretary of State, and not as the chairman of the American delegation to the World Economic Conference. He pointed out that this matter of currency issues was purely one for the consideration of the Treasury Department.

A visitor to the Colony, who expects to stay about a week, is Mr. John Lane, of the famous publishing house of the Bodley Head, London. Mr. Lane, who is a nephew of the founder of the firm, is travelling round the world in the interests of the company, and has recently been in Japan and North China.

Charged with the murder of a woman, Po Mul, 63, who was it is alleged, strangled to death in a backyard in Shaohwan district, Pan Hing and his wife Huang, Shui-ku, were committed for trial at the next session by Mr. Denfield at the Central Magistracy yesterday. Mr. Fraser, Assistant Attorney General, conducted the case for the prosecution.

LEAVE LONDON FOR WALES

ATLANTIC FLIGHT PROJECT

London, July 3.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Mollison, the famous flier, took off from London in their aeroplane the "Seafarer" for Pendine Sands in Wales.

Pendine Sands will be the starting point of their proposed non-stop flight across the Atlantic to New York.

Mollison is the only airman who has ever flown solo across the Atlantic from East to East. No woman has ever crossed in that direction.

6,000-MILE RANGE.

Their machine has a flying range of over six thousand miles and they hope to take off in the course of the next week when they will be favoured by moonlight during the Atlantic crossing.

If their first venture is successful, they will attempt to break the world nonstop long-distance record with a trip from New York to Bagdad.

It is the first joint enterprise in which Mr. and Mrs. Mollison have undertaken and it is understood that it will terminate their exploits in the realm of record-breaking.—British Wireless.

POSSESSION AND PROPERTY

THE COURT'S RIGHT EXPLAINED

An interesting technical point over the difference between possession and property cropped up in the Central Police Court this morning, when Yu Sing, newly employed watchman at the Supreme Court was charged before Mr. Wynne-Jones with stealing a blanket from 176, Queen's Road Central, the property of the Official Receiver.

Mr. H. Millington, Head Bailiff, said the house was under restraint for rent. The property had all been seized by the Court.

Mr. Wynne-Jones pointed out possession was the right of the Court, but it was not the Court's property, and they would not know the value until it was sold. Till an order was made regarding the property, it is still belonged to the owner. It was not quite the same as bankrupt property.

Defendant pleaded he stole in order to get money for food. Two months' hard labour was imposed.

VETERAN POLITICIAN

DEATH OF ARGENTINE LEADER

EX-PRESIDENT IRIGOYEN

Buenos Aires, July 3.

The death has occurred of the octogenarian politician, ex-President Irigoyen.

Dr. Irigoyen may be called the last of the Argentine caudillos. In a more turbulent country he would have been a dictator.

Dr. Irigoyen was born in the Province of Buenos Aires on a date and in a year impossible to determine. But he was over eighty. He was of modest origin, a criollo, or a native Argentine. His name showed a Basque ancestry and his swarthy complexion an admixture of Indian blood. He was six feet in height.

He received political tutelage under his uncle, Dr. Leandro Alem who led a semi-successful revolution in 1890 in which Irigoyen figured as chief of the revolutionary police force. Years later, Dr. Alem lost the support of many of his political friends and committed suicide.

REVOLUTIONARY.

From that time the nephew Hipolito remained chief of the party, refusing to consult, co-operate, collaborate, or concur with any other party or group and conspiring against the government meanwhile. He motivated a revolution in 1905 that expired within a few hours. His final triumph and elevation to the Presidency was, probably, due more to Conservative bungling than to Radical merit.

MYSTERIOUS POWER.

He wielded a mysterious power that carried him to the very chair of the Presidency. He arrived at this most exalted position in the land without having pronounced a speech, written a book, held public office, taken part in business activities, frequented social circles, travelled over the republic. Participated in meetings, personally directed the electorate, done any campaigning, been interviewed by the press, been photographed with his old father, or patted any babies on the head.

In spite of this herculean, for a politician, abstention, he was elected President with a majority of more than 400,000 votes. And that day the multitude unhitched the horses from his carriage and drew it for two miles to the Casa Rosada—the Government House—amid scenes of indescribable enthusiasm.

He was swept into the Presidency over the ruins of the Conservative Party which had for half a century governed the country.

ANTI-FOREIGN.

As President Irigoyen was responsible for keeping Argentina neutral during the World War against considerable Allied pressure. He was anti-foreign in every sense; his administration saw no new foreign capital entering Argentina.

To all appearances a Roman Catholic, he squashed a divorce law in Congress by sending a secretary along with a message telling the legislators that divorce was matter for a plebiscite and not for politicians. He would have established trade labour unions and made membership obligatory and the unions responsible legally and juridically in conflicts affecting labour. But in 1918, during the so-called "Tragic Week of January", a period of general strike and paralysis, excesses on the part of the workers met with no resistance from Irigoyen's government until forced to act by the Argentine Patriotic League, a species of vigilantes.

This episode gained for Irigoyen the reputation of a "Labourite." He was forced out of office in one of the many revolutions which swept through the South American republics in 1931 and 1932.

REFLECTION ON HONGKONG

There's an Isle among the Islands;
Garbed in a grouping mist,
Where China breaks the Ocean,
With a turn of her lazy wrist,
Where the tides with idle motion
Keep their reluctant tryst.

And the Isle like a couching lion,
Latent in garment of green,
Lifts up its head to the heaven,
Disclosing a frank, noble mien.

And lightly as rises the leaven
Suffices its soul in the sheen.

But under that velvety robing
Lies the heart of a primitive beast.

It burns with its barbaric lust,
For the winner of a Queen, clutching
The crown of the world.

IMPETURABLE SATOH: VINES COCHET AND CRAWFORD WIN

A BLACK DAY FOR BRITAIN

London, July 3.
Defeats, which not only caused the complete elimination of Englishmen from the men's singles championship, but which are bound to have serious effects on Britain's Davis Cup chances, featured Wimbledon to-day, when H. W. Austin and G. P. Hughes were beaten in the quarter-finals.

H. W. Austin, the last English player to lose in the men's singles at Wimbledon yesterday (Planet News).

Jiro Satoh, one of the most picturesque figures on the international tennis courts to-day was responsible for the elimination of Austin, beating him in one of the most remarkable games seen at Wimbledon this year.

G. P. Hughes ran up against that giant-killer, Jack Crawford, and no surprise was occasioned by the Englishman's exit. The only thing that served to emphasise was the formidable opposition which Britain will meet when the Davis Cup zone final contest comes off in a fortnight's time.

THE LAST FOUR.

The semi-finalists in the men's singles are:
Ellsworth Vines (America)
Jiro Satoh (Japan)
Jack Crawford (Australia)
Henri Cochet (France).

Satoh, obviously a firm believer in the "element of surprise," had

Austin on a piece of string in the first two sets of their match, and the Englishman appeared set for an experience something like that which he had against Vines in the final last year when he was beaten in three sets.

Satoh, forcing the pace, and executing some brilliant winning shots, went into an immediate lead. His drop shots, by which he lured Austin up to the net and then passed him with dazzling side-line drives were masterly. Austin countered with deep driving to the corners, but the Japanese revealed intelligent anticipation and quickly gained a grip on the exchange.

AUSTIN HITS BACK.

The Englishman, by his persistence succeeded in taking the first set to the twelfth game, but Satoh did not look in danger of losing it. The Japanese, fairly warmed up by this time, initiated an offensive in the second set which left Austin standing and the Japanese swept through to win at the ninth game.

Then came the transformation. Satoh, apparently playing to the accepted tactics of resting for the third set with an eye to finishing off the match in the fourth, found himself outplayed.

Austin sent over a barrage of terrific drives, following them up with smashes and volleys. He took the third set at 6-2 and the fourth at the same score, and, it looked as though Satoh had shot his bolt.

But he came back in a very refreshed state, and astonished the crowd and Austin by again taking up the running. He regained his touch and went away to a long lead with a series of glorious strokes which left Austin well beaten.

The Englishman, taken unawares by the recovery, offered little opposition and the end came with such rapidity as to create something of an anti-climax.

WHIRLWIND TENNIS.

Jack Crawford did unto Hughes as he did to Cochet a month previously. He played whirlwind tennis for three sets at the end of which Hughes could point to winning seven games.

The Australian was irresistible in the first two sets, and despite the terrific heat, set up a pace which left Hughes completely at sea. Crawford roared off game after game, and was only pulled up after taking a lead of 6-1, 6-1.

Hughes gave glimpses of his form in the third set, which he took to the twelfth game, but the Antipodean champion was taking no risks and when the opportunity arrived won his match point.

Cochet, who has been quietly progressing without running up against anything very serious, accomplished his best performance when he put paid to J. L. Stoecken, the young American, who has been making Wimbledon sit up and take notice.

Cochet adopted his usual methods of losing the first set, but once he had warmed to his task, Stoecken found he had no strokes in his equipment to offset the brilliant attacking half volleys and dexterous net work of the Frenchman. Cochet won the next three sets in a row, the task becoming easier as the game progressed.

Ellsworth Vines played championship-winning tennis to overcome Menzel, the Czech in four sets. The American, after winning the first two sets, had the game in his pocket. He rested for the third and came back stronger than ever in the fourth.

MRS. MOODY WINS.

Mrs. Wills-Moody became the first semi-finalist in the women's event, when she defeated Mlle. Payot of Switzerland, once again without the loss of a set.

Mlle. Payot offered courageous resistance in the first set which went to ten games, but the all-court superiority of Mrs. Moody was apparent, and she finally won with convincing ease.

Mixed Doubles ties formed the remainder of the day's programme, the most interesting result of which was the success of Aoki and Miss Barbara Fetham against Billington and Miss Knapp in the third round.

The Japanese and his Surrey county partner played excellent tennis and must be seriously reckoned for the title.

It and Miss Hardwick, who went perilously near to defeat in the second round, made their exit when they came up against Condon, the South African and Miss Joan Ridley. The Japanese and his partner played gallantly, but did not enjoy the same team work as their opponents.

Mild and Miss Dorothy Round had a three set match before winning against Marcel Bernard and Mlle. Henrotin, the French pair. The same happened to Nunel and Miss Noel before they advanced to the second round at the expense of Jones and Miss Valerio. Scores, as cabled by Reuter were:

A new action study of Henri Cochet, the Frenchman, who yesterday qualified for the semi-final (Planet News).

MEN'S SINGLES. FIFTH ROUND.

Ellsworth Vines (U.S.) beat R. Menzel (Czechoslovakia) 6-2, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

J. Crawford (Australia) beat G. P. Hughes (Britain) 6-1, 6-1, 7-5.

Jiro Satoh (Japan) beat H. W. Austin (Britain) 7-5, 6-3, 2-6, 2-6, 6-2.

H. Cochet (France) beat J. L. Stoecken (U.S.) 3-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-1.

WOMEN'S SINGLES. FIFTH ROUND.

Mrs. H. Wills-Moody (U.S.) beat Mlle. Payot (Switzerland) 6-4, 6-1.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS

Ramsay Scores a Clever Win

J. V. Ramsay played wonderful lawn bowls against W. Wotherpoon, an older and more experienced player, to win 21-18 in an Open Championship match at the Craigengower C.C. last night.

The score of 18 all reflected the keen spirit that pervaded the match from the start, and the spectators enjoyed the exhibition.

Ramsay has certainly earned his entry into the next round and having disposed of such a redoubtable opponent as Wotherpoon, there is every chance of his going further.

AL BROWN STILL CHAMPION.

Tennis Clashes in "B" Div.

ATTRACTIVE GAMES THIS AFTERNOON

There is an exceptionally interesting list of matches due for decision in the "B" Division of the tennis league this afternoon.

The K. C. C. have the task on beating the C.R.C. at Kowloon; the United Services Recreation Club entertain the I.R.C., the Hongkong Cricket Club visit the Civil Service and the Recreation make the trip to South China Athletic.

A lot to-day will depend on adaptability. All players are slightly out of form having been kept away from the courts by the recent rains, and the first to settle down will go a long way towards winning.

The K.C.C. have another new line-up. Gray is unable to turn out and Burnett is partnered by Hamblin. J. Rodger, who previously teamed with Gray has C. I. Stapleton as his partner. A new combination, but one which should do well. S.E. and D. S. Green make the third pair.

How Yale Beat Harvard in Athletic Contest

With Keith Brown setting the tempo by scoring a pair of magnificent victories, Yale downed Harvard, 73½ to 61½, in their fortieth annual track and field games to conclude its dual meet season unbeaten.

Brown, a sophomore, switched his activities from the pole vault runway to the high jump pits with such signal success that he cleared the bar at the superb height of 14 feet 1½ inches in the one and at 6 feet 6½ inches in the other.

In both instances he set new meet records and now all-time Yale records as well as accounting for one of the most amazing doubles ever made in the history of track.

COMBS ALSO SETS RECORD.
As a record-breaker he was not without company, however, since his team-mate, Harry Combs, also set a new mark in the javelin throw with a toss of 188 feet 5 inches. But Combs's effort could not compare with the twin feats of the black-haired youngster just completing his first year as a varsity athlete.

More records certainly would have fallen had not the meet been held on a metric basis for the first time. This meant that all track marks were new meet figures.

Karl Warner's 0.48 for 400 metres, Eddie Calvin's 0.211 for the 200 and Johnny Gray's 0.235 for the 100 were new meet figures. Yale won the meet because it was far too powerful in the field events. Coach Frank Rahaly's youngsters outscored Coach Eddie the corresponding distances on a yardage basis.

Outstanding in the losing cause were Calvin with a triple for Harvard and Johnny Dean, Cambridge football-captain-elect, with a double in the shot and discus. None of the old timers was able to recall where anyone ever had won three events before at a Crimson-Ell meet and Calvin's feat in capturing the 100-metre dash, the 200-metre dash and the broad jump would have overshadowed anything done on the field had not Brown taken this occasion for his marvellous vaulting and jumping.

BARELY MISSES WORLD MARK.
As it was the Yale youngster made the second best pole vault of the season and the second best high jump of the campaign. Despite the arduousness of his double task he barely missed clearing 14 feet 4½ inches for a new world's record. He cleared the bar but knocked it off with his chest after he was over.

Passports A Perfect Nuisance

BUT NECESSARY ADDS MAGISTRATE

An expulsion order and a fine of $50 were imposed by Mr. Wynne-Jones on Pierre Henri Agostini, 27, mercantile assistant, when he appeared on remand in the Central Police Court this morning on a charge of entering the Colony without a valid passport.

After imposing the penalty, the Magistrate said:—I would expect an expulsion order if I turned up at a foreign place without a valid passport and I would not argue about it."

Mr. C. Y. Kwan, for the defence, pleaded guilty and addressed the Bench in mitigation. He said that defendant lawfully entered Hongkong in 1930 and if he chose to stay here he would have been a lawful resident. He agreed entirely with the Court ruling that the passport was only valid for one voyage and defendant should have gone to the French Consul for a new one. He went to Canton and had therefore committed a technical offence by returning to Hongkong without a valid passport. He did not apply for another passport, because he had not complied with the French conscription law.

The Magistrate said the Court could not take cognizance of such a reason. It only took cognizance of the fact that the passport was not valid.

GENUINE BUSINESS.

Mr. Kwan—He is in the Colony for some genuine business.

Magistrate—We presume he comes here for some reason. (Smilingly) There has been no suggestion that he has come here to commit murder.

Mr. Kwan added his client was quite prepared to give an undertaking to leave the Colony for Canton to-day. He thought such an undertaking could dispense with the order for expulsion, which, if made, might ruin the defendant's career.

The magistrate pointed out that application for a valid passport cleared the order automatically. There was a French Consul in every port on the China Coast and defendant could have gone to any of those and changed his passport.

Mr. Kwan—Defendant is not a very scrupulous man.

Magistrate—The passport ordinance makes persons scrupulous. Mr. Wynne-Jones agreed that passports were a perfect nuisance. But when odd people turned up in a port like Hongkong the regulation must be applied strictly as one could never tell what it might lead to. Defendant, in this case, had given a certain amount of trouble.

HIT ON HEAD WITH MARBLE CLOCK

Detective Attacked By Thief

While taking a Chinese to the Central Police Station, Detective Tsang Cheung, was struck on the head with a marble clock (which the culprit had stolen from a flat in the vicinity) and bitten twice on the body. The incident occurred in Wellington Street and defendant escaped but was re-arrested by the injured detective. Appearing before Mr. Wynne-Jones this morning, the man was sentenced to six weeks' hard labour for theft, and a further fine of $75 or six weeks' gaol was imposed for assaulting the detective.

Defendant stated he bit the detective because he would not let him go!

FORMER SOVIET ARMY CHIEF

DEATH REPORTED OF M. LEBEDEV

Moscow, July 3. The death of M. Lebedev, former chief of staff of the Red Army, is reported.

AN OPTICAL ILLUSION

Dr. Should Prescribe Spectacles

Protests against the prescribing of spectacles by opticians were made at the Fourteenth International Ophthalmologic Congress just held here. The delegates said unanimously that such prescribing should be done by qualified doctors. They alleged that opticians often passed unnoticed obscure diseases which ultimately became incurable. Important advances have, it is claimed, been made at the congress in the study of trachoma—until recently considered incurable—and in tuberculous disease of the eye. The International Ophthalmologic Council has been reconstituted, with a new set of regulations, drawn up in England.

Mr. Leslie Paton, one of the leaders of the British delegates, is quoted as saying that the delegates were surprised at the extent of Spain's contribution to the study of eye diseases and considered the Madrid Ophthalmologic Institute's clinics as models to be copied.

One of the curiosities of the exhibition held in connection with the congress is a preserved human head on which the hair continues to grow.—Reuter.

BURGLARS RAID CATHEDRAL

BUT THEY WERE UNLUCKY

Belgrade. Thieves, attracted by the glitter of the jewelled decorations of the altar, broke into the Cathedral here during the night.

By the flickering light of the altar candles, they tore the frames from the icons, pried out the gleaming stones from the other decorations and broke open a safe and several offertory boxes.

Then they escaped by cutting a length from the bell-rope and climbing down it through a side window twenty feet from the ground.

But they were unlucky. The "golden" frames of the icons were only gilded tin, the "precious stones" were only coloured glass—and the offertory boxes and the safe had all been emptied and the contents sent to the bank.—Reuter.

HOW MUCH?

A LITTLE MATTER OF A FIVE

"How much?" said a Chinese woman from the dock of the Central Police Court this morning when asked by Mr. Wynne-Jones whether she could pay a fine on a charge of possession of a quantity of tobacco, on which duty had been evaded.

Mr. Wynne-Jones: I ought to fine you $18, but I suppose that will be too much. Fined ten dollars or seven days.

R. O. Grimmer stated he thought the tobacco was taken from a launch arriving from Deep Bay.

SEQUEL TO FATAL ACCIDENT

INDIAN DRIVER FACES TWO CHARGES

A fatal accident on Sunday when a six-year-old Chinese boy was killed in a motor car accident, had a sequel in the Police Court this morning, when Dost Mohamed, driver of the car, was charged with negligent driving and having defective brakes.

The Police allege that examination of the car revealed brakes in a poor condition.

Accused was remanded for a week on bail of $500. Mr. F. C. E. Rendall is appearing for the defence.

HEAT TAKES TOLL.

JAPANESE SOLDIERS SUFFER SEVERELY

Tokyo, July 3. The heat is taking a heavy toll of lives among the troops stationed at the military base at Mount Fuji.

It is reported that seven soldiers have died and that 80 are in a critical condition as a result of sunstroke during training. Between 100 and 150 others are reported to be suffering from sunstroke.—Reuter.

EFFECT OF THE 3-2

"SPEAKEASIES" CLOSE DOWN

DRIVEN OUT OF BUSINESS

San Francisco. At least 50,000 "speakeasies" in the United States have been driven out of business by the legislation of 3-2 beer, believes Major A. V. Dalrymple, National Prohibition Director. He claims that legal beer has forced at least 10,000 illicit "joints" out of business in New York and as many more in Chicago.

Many of the resorts, he said, are being turned into legal beer parlours.

Steps already have been taken, he said, to prevent racketeers "muscling into" the beer business by safeguarding legal brewers and retailers through a system of duplicate invoices and revenue stamps.

"Most of the beer that is being sold to-day," said Major Dalrymple, "is fresh beer because the consumers will not wait for it to be aged properly."

Most of the 50,000 "speakeasies" referred to by Major Dalrymple presumably are illegal "beer joints," which did a roaring business in selling indifferent beer, often "shot" with ether to give a "kick." A half pint glass cost anything from a dime to a quarter, according to the class of "joint." This type of illegal beer-speakasy has undoubtedly been severely hit by the new 3-2 beer, but there is no evidence that the thousands of speakeasies which have always specialized in "hard" liquors, whiskey, gin, cocktails, etcetera, have been affected seriously by the legislation of light beer.—Reuter.

GIANTS WIN EASILY

New York, July 3. Only three games were played in the national leagues to-day, when the Giants scored easily against Boston and Cleveland beat Chicago in the American League. Scores as sent by Reuter were:

SALE OF BOY

WIDOW FINED $1,000, OR 12 MONTHS

The maximum penalty, a fine of $1,000 or twelve months' hard labour, was imposed by Mr. Wynne-Jones this morning on Chan Sze, a widow, who appeared on remand on a charge of taking part in the sale of a Chinese boy, aged three years, whose parents were not traced.

The remand was granted to enable defendant to assist the Police in their search for the parents.

Det.—Inspector Elston said defendant's relatives stated they were not in a position to get in touch with her sister who was alleged to hold the receipt for the child. There was nobody in Lim Kong, near Kwongchawan, with whom the Police could communicate.

BRITISH GOVT. AND IRAQ

"SPECIAL TREATMENT" QUESTION

London, July 3. Answering a question in the House of Commons Mr. L. Horne-Bellish said the Chancellor of the Exchequer had asked intending borrowers to refrain from the present from coming on the market for foreign issues.

If the Iraq Government, which stood in special relation to the British Government, requested special treatment, the extent to which their proposals would lead to the placing of orders in this country would be one of the considerations taken into account in reaching a decision.—British Wireless.

THIS STRANGE WORLD

INCIDENTS FROM HERE & THERE

SOME QUEER STORIES

London. Somebody has lost an aeroplane. This is just one of the queer things reported by Reuter correspondents.

The local authorities at Muncie, Indiana, have been searching for the owner of an aeroplane which was found abandoned on a farm. A farmer who saw the machine land said that two young men climbed from the cockpit—and just walked away!

A fisherman near Bulawayo landed a six-pound barbel. Inside it was a three-foot water-snake.

A dog which was being chased from the Government Buildings at Windhoek (British S.W. Africa) leaped from a balcony forty feet from the ground—and landed in the middle of the hood of a touring car parked below. The dog was unhurt. But the hood was ruined.

380,000,000 SINGLE WOMEN.

A Budapest newspaper says that there are more than 380,000,000 unmarried women in the world.

For sixty years old Maria Brodnjak had lived near Ljubljana (Yugo-Slavia) in the deepest poverty.

Then she had a letter from America.

Old Maria did not know who had all these friends in America. But the letter said that a long-forgotten uncle had died there and left her $85,000,000. The American consul in Zagreb had confirmed this news.

A bearded man aged 79 at Johannesburg reached from his bed to light a candle. The head of the match fell on to his beard. The beard caught fire, the flames spread to the bedclothes and the man was burned to death.

A shoemaker of Hottent (Indiana) aged sixty-five was disappointed at the marks given to his eleven-year-old son in school. So he shot two school officials dead—and then committed suicide.

MARRIED AT 11—DIVORCED AT 13.

Mrs. Ballard, of Hammond, Louisiana, was married at eleven and divorced at thirteen.

Now she has died from shotgun wounds which the police say she inflicted on herself because she was disappointed in love. She was fifteen.

Mr. Sussman Levinsky, of New York, directed in his will that his estate of $2,000 should be divided equally among his wife and six children.

And his will added a threat that Mr. Levinsky would "whistle in the ears" of anybody who disregarded his wishes!

A determined old woman appeared in a court at Vinkovatz (Yugo-Slavia). She claimed a few pounds from a tradesman for eggs and butter which she said she had sold to him.

"How old are you?" asked the judge, and the old woman replied: "I'll be 116 next birthday, if God allows."

She was Manda Hrvogovitch, who has been four times a widow. Despite her age, she still walks well with a stick.—Reuter.

LORD MARCHER

WOMAN SUCCEEDS TITLE

FIRST TIME FOR 1000 YEARS

London. For only the third time in nearly 1,000 years, a woman has become Lord Marcher of the Barony of Komes in Pembrokeshire. The office was created in the time of William the Conqueror.

The Lord Marcher then was required to ride at the head of an armed force to protect the English counties from the hordes of Wales.

One of the privileges of the office is the maintenance of a bodyguard of homagers equipped with halberds.

Mrs. Nesta Withington of Bloes-ter, Oxford, has just succeeded as the 26th holder of the Lord Marcher's office on the death of her son, Sir Martin Withington. Her daughter will succeed her.—Reuter.

40,000,000 AMERICA WITH THYROID

DIET ONLY SOLUTION TO PROBLEM

Memphis, Tennessee. From 30 to 40 million Americans are manifesting disorders of the thyroid glands, estimates Dr. Weston of Columbia, South Carolina, and advocates a complete soil and goiter survey of the U.S.A.

Addressing the annual convention of the American Association for the Study of Goiter, Dr. Weston suggested that the survey be undertaken by the United States Public Health Service and similar organizations.

"We believe it will be necessary to make iodine analysis of the fruits, vegetables and milk from every section and then exercise whatever influence we have through a campaign of education and by working in cooperation with the processors and purveyors of food towards obtaining their supply from areas in which the iodine content of fruits, vegetables and milk is high.

"We believe that in this country, as in Europe, students of nutrition are rapidly reaching the conclusion that it is only through diet that the problem can be solved."—Reuter.

SEEING COLOURS

WITHOUT USING YOUR EYES

Prague. You can "see" colours without using your eyes, according to Professor Friedmann, of the Robert Koch Institute of Berlin, quoted by the magazine "Koralle" here.

In the course of a recent experiment, Professor Friedmann held a red lamp directly over the brain and under the skull of a number of small animals. His register showed large agitated curves.

When he held a blue lamp in the same position, the chart registered flat, smooth curves. This experiment, the professor says, proves that living things are sensitive to different colours even when deprived of the use of their eyes. The tips of the fingers is the most sensitive spot in the case of human beings. Experiments were made with blindfolded girls who were asked to distinguish between wooden balls of different colours in a dark room. Several of the girls were unerring in their choice. The Professor declares that their brains reacted to the colours by the touch of a finger.—Reuter.

BLIND GIRL'S SIGHT SEEING

TAKES AEROPLANE TRIP

GREAT ALTITUDE GUESSER

Kansas City, Missouri. Miss Laura Gregory, a 32-year-old blind typist, tells of her sight-seeing tour of the United States by aeroplane.

Miss Gregory, who can type more than 100 letters a day without an error, said she conceived the idea of two weeks vacation in the air to show the world that a blind girl can travel alone by plane.

"I can tell when the plane is taking off," Miss Gregory said. "And the steward says I am the best altitude guesser he ever has on his ship. It is a delightful sensation to glide through the air like a bird, and it is an even greater thrill for a blind person than for one who can see everything, because one can imagine such beautiful things. Honestly I feel as if I were sitting on top of the world, in spirit as well as literally."

An accident robbed her of her sight when she was 6 years old. Nevertheless she was graduated from high school, taught later in a school for the blind, then entered business college and finished at the head of her class.—Reuter.

"KENT TELLS THE WORLD"

AMAZING GROWTH OF INDUSTRY

Kent, the county of undulating hills, picturesque hop fields, rich fruit gardens, lovely lanes, sun-kissed seaside resorts and health-giving inland watering towns, is the Kent which has been given to the world up to now.

But (and this will come probably as big a surprise to the non-resident Kentish man or man of Kent as it does to the Englishman claiming allegiance to other parts of the homeland), Kent has its industries. And there is nothing of the mushroom growth about them. All are sturdy, progressive young industries playing a big part in the nation-wide effort to stimulate English trade in the face of old man Depression.

Kent is as proud now of these industries as she always has been of her glorious scenic attractions, and to prove it the Association of Men of Kent and Kentish Men have just published an extremely interesting booklet, which, by its very title, reveals its object. "Kent Tells the World", is not only a valuable guide to the home-going Englishman from the tropics and Dominions as well as the foreigner, but is a mine of information concerning Kent's new industries.

The reader is given an informative and entertaining introduction to Kent's collieries at Snowdown near Dover, the paper making mills at Gravesend and Aylesford, the brewing industry at Maidstone, Paddock Wood, Hythe, Waterbury, and Canterbury, tile making at Marley's works, Harrietsham, the tremendous importance of Dover as a shipping port and a score of other young, but growing undertakings all of which are taking a big part in the industrialism of England.

The beauties of West Kent are not ignored. Tunbridge Wells with its romantic Pantiles, lovely Common and tonic waters; historical Penshurst, busy Maidstone, charming old Canterbury. Each with its peculiar attractions is adequately described.

The publication, the first of its kind, is attractively presented, being profusely illustrated and extremely well printed by the Kent Messenger. Through this medium, it is impossible for Kent to "Tell the World" in vain.—"Man of Kent."

P. C. SELIM MAHMOUD VINDICATED

efficient enough for any other job. Again the words of the Inspector rankled.

Passing down the street, the top note of a fretful baby broke in on his thoughts above the din of the slums. Next he heard the mother trying to soothe it. She crooned, in a sing-song voice, "Ah Cha lai lo," which means "Huh! Indian Uncle is coming!"

The desired effect was gained on the baby. As he approached, the child now hushed into silence, stared at him with wide open eyes. Slowly a smile broke through the seriousness of P. C. Selim Mahmoud's face. Here at least was where he was of service to a community afflicted with fretful babies. He thought: could the Inspector but see him at that moment, he would have cause to revise his opinion.

With a growing belief in an accomplished vindication, the melancholy thoughts that had troubled P. C. Selim Mahmoud that day were dispelled, and he continued serenely on his way.

TESTS IN IMMINENT DANGER

TALK OF CANCELLATION

London, June 27. According to the News-Chronicle, influential Australians now in land are urging the Australian Board of Control to cancel the 1934 tour "unless the M.C.C. adopts a different attitude over the bodyline bowling controversy." The receipt of such advice and loathness to accept it accounts for the Australian delay in replying to the M.C.C. cable suggesting a conference and in the meantime all arrangements for the tour are hanging fire.

Writing in the News-Chronicle, A. E. R. Gilligan declares that the danger of a cancellation of the England-Australia Tests is most imminent and suggests the immediate calling of a conference of Englishmen and Australians, including as many past international

YESTERDAY'S MARKET FIRM

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Frits, the New York market was firm yesterday. Business done 6,720,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports:—Stocks, grains and cotton rose impressively due to weakness in the U. S. dollar on account of President Roosevelt's rejection of the stabilization plan. There was nationwide buying and once during the day tickers were twelve minutes behind. The Cotton Exchange reported that world consumption of May cotton amounted to 2,212,000 bales, being the largest for any month since January 1930, as compared with 2,032,000 bales for the month of April and 1,854,000 bales for May 1932. Cable received during for May 1932. Service at 11.40 from Swan, Culbertson and Frits, New York. Excellent trade news and the announcement of the United States plan to raise general price level are being reflected in the stock market, which looks higher, especially rails, steels and harvest issues. Wheat: Sterling aided bullish belief that with high temperatures in the Southwest and little rain in the spring wheat belt the market can easily work higher.

DARLING FOOL

thor's step on the terrace. She saw the erect, spare, dignified figure pass under the porte cochere. His right hand held his silver-knobbed stick.

Sandra relaxed on her chaise longue. Dim kitchen sounds drifted upstairs, the clink of china, of silver being handled and put away. The chirp of crickets came to her from the garden. It was stupid, killing time like this at home. She must have dozed because presently she came back from some dim dream to the realization that the new maid's voice spoke to her respectfully from the doorway.

"Telephone for you, Miss Sandra." Still drowsy, she took the instrument. "Yes, Yes." Her voice quickened. She sat up-right. "My father, you say? Where? How? Tell me—"

She whirled about facing the waiting servant. "They've cut me off! My father—hurt—I must hurry!"

PROTECTION

for your family's "DANGER PERIOD"

The following is a brief explanation of how our Family Income Policy can protect your family during that critical period when your children are dependent, and when a maximum monthly income is most needed.

Ordinarily, the sum required, invested conservatively, to provide an adequate monthly income is so large as to be beyond the reach of most people.

By means of our Family Income Policy, which requires a comparatively small amount of insurance, at a slightly increased rate, a guaranteed monthly income can be provided during the period when your children are still dependent. At the end of this period, your wife will receive a cash settlement equal to the full value of the policy, or, if she desires, a yearly income as long as she lives.

TEN ACCIDENTS A DAY

TRAMS PROBLEM IN LENINGRAD

Helsingfors. Some alarming facts are given in a statement on the conditions of the tramways in Leningrad, by former German consul there. Among other things he says that tram collisions during the first nine months of 1932 totalled 2,613, or nearly ten a day. 1,911 trams jumped the rails, or an average of seven a day. There were 277 fatal accidents or slightly more than one a day, including 78 children killed. 2,458 people were injured, including 391 children. Although the total length of tramway lines has increased from about 88 miles in pre-war days to 210 miles to-day, the number of collisions has increased from 1,777 to 814. -Reuter.

DANGEROUS BUS SPEEDING

"BOUNCED ABOUT ALL OVER PLACE"

Warning defendant that the fine was the minimum imposed for dangerous driving on the Island, Mr. Schofield this morning fined Chau Woon-to driver of a China Motor Bus Company vehicle, $20. Defendant had a clear record, and had formerly driven in Kowloon.

Detective-inspector Chester-Woods, prosecuting, said he was a passenger in the bus which travelled from Seymour Road to the turn from Upper Albert Road to Lower Albert Road at an average speed of 25 m.p.h. It was only when they reached the corner, that he could speak to the driver with any degree of safety. On turning the corner, defendant speeded again. "We just bounced about all over the place" he added.

OBSTRUCTION CASE.

Through a representative, Mrs. M. H. Roffey pleaded guilty to a summons for obstruction. Traffic-Sergeant Winslade stated Mrs. Roffey left her car outside Mac's Cafeteria from 10.40 to 11.35. A fine of $5 was imposed.

BALDWIN'S DAUGHTER

GRANTED DECREE FOR HUSBAND'S MISCONDUCT

London, June 24. A decree nisi has been granted to Mrs. D. B. Munro, eldest daughter of Mr. Stanley Baldwin, for the misconduct of her husband, Capt. R. G. Munro, of the Dragoon Guards.

Attempt on Soviet Official

ANOTHER TOKYO INCIDENT

Moscow, July 3. An attempt was made in Tokyo to-day to assassinate M. Kochetoff, the Soviet trade representative, according to despatches from the Japanese capital.

The incident followed the invasion of the Trade Commissioner's office and the destruction of much of the office furniture by a member of a reactionary society who subsequently gave himself up to the police.

Later in the day, an attempt on the life of M. Kochetoff was made by the head of a well-known revolutionary organisation, named Supremate Nazime.

ASSAILANT ARRESTED.

The assailant was placed under arrest. He explained that his motive was revenge for the murder of the three Japanese fishermen at Kamchatka.

The Tokyo Foreign Office have expressed their regret that the incident should have occurred to the Soviet Ambassador and to M. Kochetoff and have promised an energetic investigation. -Reuter.

A QUESTION OF CONSIGNMENT

TRADER SUED BY KNITTING CO.

At the Supreme Court to-day, the Chung Wo Knitting Co., of 12 Fuk Tsun Street, Mongkok, sued Li Yik Chan, trading as Yik Chan, of 97, Wing Lok Street, for $1,000 and costs in respect of goods sold and delivered.

Plaintiffs who had waived the sum of $83.23 to bring the case within summary jurisdiction, were represented by Mr. G. S. Ford of Messrs. Wilkinson and Grist, and Mr. da Silva appeared for defendant.

It was stated that the goods were "Goldenf" singlets and the defendant's submission was that they were consigned to him, as agent, to sell. He admitted liability for one batch of goods valued at $533, but contended that owing to the largeness of the last lot there was an agreement that he should take them on consignment.

Plaintiff said the goods were taken over by defendant in the usual manner and were sold outright to him.

The case is proceeding.

Wong Foo ahn Wong Cheung-tak, a trader late of Toronto, who died at his last home, Lung Tong Village, Tai Shan, on November 15, 1932, left local estate sworn under $6,000. Letters of administration to the estate have been granted Wong See To Shi, the widow, of the same address but temporarily living at 25, Jervois Street, Victoria.
